HUGHES' SUPPORTERS CLAIM HE WILL BE NOMINATED TODAY FOR PRESIDENT BY THE REPUBLICANS

Roosevelt's Nomination by Progressives Without Further Delay is Not Doubted

DELEGATES NOW IMPATIENT

Programme Yesterday Carried Out by Conventions as Agreed Upon by Conference

REPUBLICANS VOTE TWICE

Conferees Meet Again But Neither Side Hopes for Peace

Chicago, June 9.—While the Progressive leaders held the delegates who were impatient to nominate Colonel Roosevelt under control today the Republican convention proceeded to the nomination of a presidential candidate without making a choice on two ballots.

Hughes supporters tonight pointed to the Justice's substantial lead on the two ballots to support their contention that he would be nominated tomorrow. No one doubted that the Progressives would nominate Colonel Roosevelt without further delay.

Nothing Unexpected Happens.

Keeping faith with the promise implied in the agreement reached by the Republican and Progressive harmony conference both conventions today did just what they were expected to do.

Notwithstanding predictions and prophecies that one or the other would get out of hand or do something surprising, nothing unexpected happened. The Republicans met, listened to nominating speeches, took the two promised ballots without a nomination and adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Progressives met an hour before and well in hand, followed the programme laid down by the managers. They debated the platform, kept tab on the Coliseum, listened to the efforts of their best orators and when word came that the Republicans had adjourned without making a nomination they adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow morning.

On the heels of the two sessions, the conference committee met again but from neither side came any expected hope of a peaceful outcome.

ROOSEVELT WILL DIRECT PROGRESSIVE CONVENTION

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 9.—Immediately after the adjournment of the Republican convention tonight, Colonel Roosevelt assumed personal direction of the Progressive convention over the long distance telephone. He expected to b eup most of the night making plans for tomorrow.

Colonel Roosevelt kept in close touch with the balloting in Chicago and appeared well pleased with the result of the second ballot which left Hughes far short of enough delegates to win the nomination. He feels that the Hughes adherents will not be able to win the nomination. He feels that the Hughes adherents will not be able to gain further strength and seemed to attach significance to the fact that it was Senator Penrose who moved for an adjournment.

It is belief of Colonel Roosevelt that the maximum of Hughes' strength was reached on the second ballot and that his own chances of getting the nomination of a separate ticket by the Progressives. It is the general opinion in Oyster Bay tonight, however, that unless the Republicans show a "spirit of accommodation" the Progressives undoubtedly will place a third ticket in the field

ALLIES AGAINST JUSTICE HUGHES PREPARE TO TAKE A LAST STAND FOR DEFEAT

Steps Taken to Prevent Desertions from Other Candidates and Check the Tide of Support Which Has Been Flowing to the Justice.

Plans Kept Secret With the Utmost Care—Leaders Also Want to Defeat Roosevelt.

Chicago, June 10.—The last stand of the allies against the Hughes forces which threatened to sweep the Republican convention today has been ordered. With more than a majority of the delegates still pledged to their colors steps were taken at midnight to guard against desertions. Optimistic statements were circulated based on the ability of the combination of favorite sons to adjourn yesterday's session before proceeding with a third ballot which, if taken, almost certainly would have made Justice Hughes the nominee.

The plans of the combination were guarded with utmost secrecy but it was necessary for the leaders to take so many persons into their confidence that it became known that the allies looked to Sagamore Hill for the reinforcement needed to make victory theirs. A word from Colonel Roosevelt, they all seemed to thing, would end the chance of a nomination of Hughes and his approval of an ally would give that kind of strength to go before the convention today with at least a show to get the nomination.

The leaders in th ecombinations were leaders in the candidacies of Fairbanks, Weeks and Burton, but it was hoped to enlist all of the other allied candidacies, Sherman, Root, Cummins, Knox and those with a scattered following. The advocates of the nomination of Fairbanks were the most insistent because he was the only one of the allies who made a gain on the second ballot at the Coliseum. All of them agreed, however, that if Colonel Roosevelt should make a selection o fsome other of the candidates, they would abide by his decision and do their utmost to nominate that man.

Former Senator Root figured prominently in the plans of the combination, as many of the political leaders opposed to the nomination of Hughes argued that they must consider the supposed ambition of Colonel Roosevelt to get the Republican nomination in 1920 if it is denied in 1916. On account of Mr. Root's advanced age it was said that Colonel Roosevelt might favor him over others.

The former Senator from New York is popular with most of the prominent Republican leaders. If it were believed that he could be elected, it is known he would be favored by many of them on account of his recognized mental fitness for the presidency.

The greatest element of doubt in the situation concerns the supporters of Cummins, of Iowa, and LaFollette, of Wisconsin, because of their progressive tendencies. When released from their pledges thse dlegats, the favorit son combination fars, will go in a body to the support of Justice Hughes.

The Hughes managers profess not to be alarmed that the favorite sons were organizing for a fight against the Justice. Their optimism was based on their belief that many of the instructed delegates cannot be transferred at will from one allied candidate to another and that by any swaps attempted Hughes is bound to gain strength. They repeated their claims that Hughes would be nominated they thought, on the first ballot today and certain not later than the second which would be the fourth taken by the convention.

As the night wore on meager details of the anti-Hughes conferences became known. George W. Perkins, of th Progressive convention, Senator Penrose and a number of others met early.

The spokesman for the Republican faction convinced Mr. Perkins that because of personal prejudices against Colonel Roosevelt held by many of the delegates, chiefly on account of the Colonel leaving the party four years ago, he could not under any circumstances gather more than 350 votes in the Republican convention, in which 494 votes is a majority.

Mr. Perkins told the Republican members of the conference that next to nominating Colonel Roosevelt he desired above all to prevent the nomination of Justice Hughes. He asserted that if Jusetice Hughes were nominated Colonel Roosevelt would not support him and the Republican ticket certainly would be defeated. He thought Mr. Root was the one member of the allies force who stood a chance of nomination and win the support of the Colonel. He dismissed as unworthy of serious consideration the claims of other allied candidates. Some of the other progressives who were consulted concerning this effort to bring the two factions together feared that Mr. Root's political relations with several of Colonel Roosevelt's political enemies would make it impossible for the Colonel to support Root. William Barnes, Jr., was mentioned in this connection.

TENTH DISTRICT CANDIDATES NOTIFIED OF SECOND PRIMARY

No Democratic Candidate for Congress There Had Majority.

Raleigh, N. C., June 9.—Official notices went today to Zeb Vance Weaver and Judge M. H. Justice from the State Board of Elections that it will be necessary for them to try out a second primary in order to settle the contest for the nomination for Congress. The official vote in the Tenth shows Weaver 4,583; Justice 3,074; Gallert ,043, and Hewett 803.

Chairman Lamb, of the State Board of Elections, also notified L. D. Robinson and U. L. Spence, in the Seventh district, that a second primary is necessary there, but this is merely a formality, as Mr. Spence has already announced that he will not demand a second primary, yielding to the long lead that Mr. Robinson had in the first primary. The vote in the Seventh was Robinson 6,316; Spence 3,609; Varner 2,528; T. B. Finley 1,583.

ONLY A POLITICAL MIRACLE CAN STOP NOMINATION TODAY

Roosevelt Will be Named Progressive Candidate if All Efforts for Peace Fail

UNLESS HE REFUSES TO RUN

Delegates Become More Weary as the Hours Pass—Leaders Manage to Check Action

Auditorium Hall, Chicago, June 9.—Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated for President tomorrow by the Progressive National Convention unless there is some political miracle—an agreement between its conferees and those from the Republican convention or direct emphatic word from Mr. Roosevelt himself that the Progressive nomination would not be accepted.

For an hour today the leaders of the convention staved off a nomination that they knew and every delegate in the hall knew was crowding forward with the hours themselves and could no more be stopped than an avalanche if once the convention was assured that the last hope of peace was gone and Mr. Roosevelt's nomination at the coliseum could not be accomplished.

From Hysteria to Calm.

After three sessions that ran through the gamut of emotions from hysteria for Mr. Roosevelt to a calm dispassionate discussion of planks in the platform, the convention adjourned at 9:58 tonight until 10:30 tomorrow.

It was only after repeated assurance from the leaders that Colonel Roosevelt himself desired that the nomination be postponed and orators that played upon their good nature that the delegations swallowed their own convictions that the nomination was the real and only business to be considered and consented to quit the hall for the night.

Al day the delegates kept on guard while the leaders watched or listened over the telephone to detect any unexpected move by the Republicans. As the ballots were taken in the Coliseum they waited and listened and kept their tempers

They are All For Roosevelt.

They were told they must "keep the faith," and allow two ballots to be taken by the Republicans according to the agreement between the peace conferees and approved by Colonel Roosevelt himself. The approval of the Colonel was a trump card held by the sleeves of leaders but never played for when the Coliseum quit for the night, the delegates tired out with long sitting in the hot, sticky theatre, were willing to wait for a nomination.

"Twenty-four hours won't make any difference," said Governor Hiram Johnson. The crowd agreed and accepted the motion to adjourn.

There was little routine business during the day. The platform was tentatively agreed upon with only a few changes. A fight to insert a prohibition plank was beaten by a vote of 523 to 82 after the leaders had explained at length that to put it in meant that prohibition and not Americanism would then become the main issue.

For the rest, the delegates just cheered and listened. Realizing that an outbreak might be averted only by keeping them in good humor the leaders recognized man after man in the hall, called them to the platform and allowed them to play on the crowd's good nature and its sense of humor.

Get Some Comfort.

Before adjournment the delegates were told after the results of the first two ballots at the Coliseum. They took comfort from the vote for Mr. Roosevelt and the motion to end the session was unopposed.

James R. Garfield, of Ohio, made the adjournment motion and the delegates left the hall.

One of the incidents of the day and one of the most dramatic was the sudden appearance upon the platform of Senator Borah, of Idaho, a delegates to the Republican convention and one of foncerees. He got a reception that rose to the high ceiling of the theatre and swelled out into the streets but when he began to speak the old temper for Roosevelt flamed out again.

The senator spoke briefly, he hoped for harmony and peace and the spirit of get together but he promised to follow Mr. Roosevelt with all the ardor he was capable of if he should be the nominee of the two parties.

Shouts for a Nomination.

Before the night session opened Sergeant-at-Arms- Corrick read Associated Press bulletins from the Republican convention of the first balloting. A table of the first ballot was quickly compiled to be read to the delegates.

The Maine delegation started another demonstration with a chant, "Why not, why not, why not nominate now?"

The tune was that of the old familiar hymn. As it spread through the hall the band and thousands of delegates and spectators joined. It became a shout, a roar that swelled and echoed under the high roof.

Secretary Davis read the results of the first Republican ballot.

Governor Johnson said that he was not in accord with the leaders "who

HUGHES' STRENGTH GROWS WHILE TWO VOTES ARE TAKEN

His Supporters Were Confident Last Night That He Would Win on Third Ballot

FAR AHEAD OF ROOSEVELT

First Time Since 1888 a Republican Convention Has Taken More Than One Ballot

Coliseum, Chicago, June 9.—On the two only ballots taken tonight in the Republican National Convention Justice Hughes led the field and gained strength for the presidential nomination. His supporters, confident that another ballot would give him a majority, resisted adjournment, but the convention, tired and worn with a continuous 10-hour session, was determined to rest until tomorrow and adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

It was the first time since 1888 a Republican convention has taken more than one ballot to choose a presidential nominee.

On the first ballot Justice Hughes polled 253 1-2 votes. He got 42 from his own state and aside from Oregon and Florida the remainder were largely scattering. On the second ballot he increased to 328 1-2 votes. It requires 494 votes to nominate.

Colonel Roosevelt's topmost strength in the first day's balloting was 81 votes. Besides Justice Hughes, the Colonel and Charles W. Fairbanks ,of all the eighteen men who had votes on the first ballot alone made an increase on the second.

Roosevelt Demonstration.

The expected demonstration for Colonel Roosevelt when he was nominated by Senator Fall, of New Mexico, lasted 41 minutes.

All observers agreed that it was largely a gallery demonstration and that the participation was scattering from the delegates section. The Fairbanks demonstration ran 35 minutes, the Burton demonstration lasted 34 minutes and the Hughes demonstration lasted 20 minutes.

On the first ballot the delegates voted for favorite sons and primary choices. Senator Weeks got 105; Elihu Root 103; Cummins 85; Fairbanks 74 1-2; Sherman 65 and Knox 36. Henry Ford got Michigan's 30 votes by instruction. Former President Taft got 14 from Texas, and the scattering included complimentary votes for Borah, Willis and McCall and the instructed vote for other candidates.

The Second Ballot.

On the second ballot Michigan turned them over to Hughes and gave Colonel Roosevelt 2; McCall, of Massachusetts, turned his vote to the Justice amid great applause; Senator Lodge, who had nominated Weeks, turned his vote to Colonel Roosevelt; W. Murray Crane announced his vote for Hughes; Missouri gave the Justice 22 of her 36; New Jersey gave him 16.

The New York delegation vote on the second ballot stood Hughes 43, Root 42, and Roosevelt 2. Pennsylvania's second ballot was Knox 36; Roosevelt 23; John Wanamaker 5; Hughes 8; Dupont 2; Root 1, and one not voting.

Before the second ballot was taken one of the favorite sons—Governor Brumbaugh—withdrew and proposed the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt. The other favorite sons remained through the balloting. On the second ballot one vote was cast for Major General Leonard Wood and one for Chairman Harding.

Tomorrow the Hughes supporters predict they will continue to draw strength and nominate their candidate.

"We quit while we were growing," declared the Hughes people.

An analysis showing where the gains of Justice Hughes came from on the second ballot follows:

Hughes Gained 75 Votes.

In all Justice Hughes gained 75 votes on the second balot. He gained one in Alabam, two in California, one in Georgia, one in Kentucky, two in Louisiana, two in Maine, eight in Massachusetts, 28 in Michigan, four in Missouri, two in Nebraska, eight in New Hampshire, four in New Jersey, one in New York, six in Pennsylvania, two in South Carolina, two in Texas, one in Utah, three in Virginia, three in West Virginia, one in Hawaii. He lost one vote in Arkansas, one in Hawaii.

Roosevelt gained 16 votes in the ballot. One of these came from Maine, one from Massachusetts, two from Michigan, 15 from Pennsylvania, one from Texas. He lost one vote in Idaho, one in South Carolina, one in Washington and one in Georgia.

Ten Hour Session.

In ten continuous hours, the delegates today sat through eleven nominating speeches which presented Justice Hughes, Elihu Root, former Senator Burton, Senator Weeks, T. Coleman Dupont, Senator Sherman, former Senator Fairbanks, Senator Cummins, Colonel Roosevelt, Senator LaFollette and Governor Brumbaugh. There were a various number of seconding speeches. Ten had been planned for Colonel Roosevelt and although Chairman Harding agreed to recognize them all they did not all appear. The demonstrations as candidates were nominated were usual cheering, roar, marching affairs.

Butler Seconded Roosevelt.

North Carolina delegates were prominent among those making seconding speeches. Former Senator Marion Butler seconded Roosevelt, former Representative Thomas Settle spoke for Weeks, I. M. Meekins, of Elizabeth City, advocated the nomination of Burton and Judge Bynum seconded Root.

RUSSIAN ARMIES HAVE CAPTURED OVER 65,000 MEN IN GREAT DRIVE

RUSSIANS SWIFTLY DRIVING WESTWARD

After Five Days of Furious Offensive the Austrians' Lines Are Badly Crumpled

BROKEN IN SOME PLACES

Austrian Units Forced to Surrender at Some Points, Accounting for the Large Number of Troops Made Prisoner.

Petrograd, via London, June 9.—Five days of furious offensive by the forces of General Brussiloff has crumpled their opponents' lines from the Kovel-Sarny railway line to Bukowina, driving them back an average of 15 miles.

In the Lutsk sector the Russians appear to have completely broken, turning the left flank of the Austrian armies and the right flank of the German forces and capturing Lutsk, the center of a number of radiating roads and railways. At several points the attacking Russians have crossed the Ikwa and Styr rivers and further south they are approaching the Stripa river.

The victories are attributable largely to the avalanche of gun-fire which swept away dozens of lines of entanglements and opened the way for the troops, who swept through in irresistible numbers. In some places the Russian barrier fire cut off large Austrian units, which surrendered. This accounts for the large number of prisoners officially reported captured.

The operation began in the vicinity of Olyka, where skirmishing has been frequent lately. Both sides appeared to have been feeling for a weak spot in their oponent's line. The Russian advance from this point which is 22 miles from Lutsk, was accomplished in two and one-half days. During the long period of inactivity the Austrians constructed strong fortifications in this section. The topograpny of the country also formed strong natural defenses.

Military observers regard the operation as an extraordinarily brilliant achievement and emphasize the able leadership of General Brussiloff, who engineered the Carpathian campaign and made a record for prisoners, guns and munitions captured.

Lutsk is an important link, strengthening the connection between the southwestern region and the northern section and the possession of it by the Russians is regarded as a valuable step toward the re-capturing of lost territory.

The possession of Lutsk is a direct menace to Lemberg, upon which place the Austrians now are massing their forces.

The prisoners captured are said to be cheifly Hungarians and Austrians. They includ ea very small proportion of Slavs, who are chiefly employed on the Italian front.

PRISONERS SAY RUSSIAN ATTACKS WERE UNEXPECTED

London, June 9.—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends the following concerning the Russian offensive against the Austro-Hungarians:

"Wounded Austrian officers assert that the Russian attacks against their armies were totally unexpected. On the eve of the attack the enemy was celebrating the German victory in the North Sea with champagne and cognac but the opening of the Russian bombardment ended the festivities.

"From other sources comes the tale of how Russians seized by surprise an Austrian railway station with its personnel. Fifteen minutes later a military train with troops and supplies arrived and all the Austrians and supplies were captured. An hour later train loads of shells arrived and also fell into the hands of the Russians.

"In one instance virtually a complete Austrian division, including, two generals, surrendered. The only person to resist was a Hungarian Sister of Mercy; she fired a revolver but afterwards was disarmed without difficulty."

AUSTRIAN LINES BROKEN ALONG FRONT OF 94 MILES

London, June 9.—Information has reached the Russian embassy in Rome that the Austrian front has been completely broken along a length of 94 miles to a depth of 37 1-2 miles, according to a Central News dispatch today from the Italian capital.

The Russian advance, according to these advices, now threatens to envelop the entire Austrian army in the region affected, the Austrians finding themselves attacked from both the east and north.

Austrian Slav regiments are declared to have been seized by panic during the first attacks by the Russians and to have surrendered without any real resistance.

JUSTICE HUGHES ATTENDS HIS AFFAIRS AS VOTE IS TAKEN

Washington, June 9.—The balloting at Chicago did not interrupt the seclusion in which Justice Hughes is spending convention week. He was in his office or at his residence throughout the day busy with court work, and had no callers. He spent the evening in the drawing room with Mrs. Hughes and their daughters. Several newspaper representatives were received by his private secretary, L. H. Green, and to them local newspapers telephoned summaries of each of the ballots. Mr. Greene said there was no statement to make.

Italians Have Been Forced to Withdraw to New Positions

The Russians are keeping up with success their offensive against the Austro-Hungarians from the Pripet river to the Rumanian border, along a front of some 250 miles. The troops of Emperor Nicholas have crossed the Stripa river in Galicia and reached the Zlota Lipa river. Petrograd reports that 1,143 officers and more than 64,700 men have been taken prisoner since the present great drive against the Austro-Hungarian line began.

Germans Sent to Aid.

East of Lutsk near the center of the advancing Russian line General Brussiloff's troops have made important advances along the Styr river and the Kovel-Rovno railway. It is reported from Petrograd that German troops have been sent to aid the Anstrians. Vienna admits tha the Austro-Hungarians troops have reached new positions after fighting guard actions with the Russians.

The Germans, after the successful thrust in the Thiaumont farm, have ceased for the moment their infantry attacks against this section for the Verdun front, Paris reports. Their artillery bombardment, however, has continued to be heavy in the region south of the Thiaumont farm, in the Chapitre wood, in the Fumin wood and south of Ramloup. O nthe left bank of the Meuse several attacks by German infantry against Hill 304 have been repulsed by the French.

Italians Withdraw.

Under the pressure of infantry and artillery attacks the Italians troops have withdrawn to new positions in the zone east of Asiago and east of the Campomulo valley. This is admitted by Rome and Vienna officially claims further gains on the Asiago highlands. The Austro-Hungarians report the number of Italians taken prisoner since the beginning of the month as 12,400.

King Constantine has signed an order demobilizing twelve classes of the Greek army amounting to 150,000 men. Paris considers this action as being the result of pressure by the Entente Allies. The demolization order, it is reported from Athens, may bring about the downfall of the Skouloudis

MANY AMERICANS ARE LEAVING NORTHERN MEXICO

Anti-American Demonstrations Chihuahua and Other States Continue.

Washington, June 9.—Anti-American demonstrations in northern Mexico continue, according to official advices today, particularly in the states of Chihuahua, San Luis Potosi and Neuve Leon, and consular agents have reported that the temper of the people appears such that any eventuality might be possible. Americans are leaving for the border in steadily increasing numbers and border agents have been instructed to urge those seeking to return to Mexico not to do so for the present. Officials here showed conskierable uneasiness over the situation.

A mass meeting was held at Saltillo last night at which many speeches resenting the presence of American troops in Mexico were made. Simliar meetings have been held or are contemplated at other points. The only violence against American property reported was at Chihuahua City and Monterey, where there are no consular agents.

Statements from Americans reaching the border and also from consular gency and also to lend efficient prowhile General Carranza's forces were trying to overawe the demonstrators, their control was not to be depended on entirely in some districts.

Earle of Selbourne Tells How Admiral Jellicoe "Routed" German Fleet.

London, June 10.—The Earl of Selborne, president of the board of agriculture, speaking in London last night on the recent battle in the North Sea between the British and the Germans said:

"How precipitate was the flight of the German fleet is shown by the fact that only three men were wounded in the whole of Admiral Jellicoe's fleet. Not one of his ships was able to get in the gun fire more than six minutes. The only one of his ships to suffer was the battleship Marlborough, which was torpedoed by a submarine but reached harbor safely."

CABINET REVIEWS PLATFORM DRAFT

President Wilson Goes Over It in Detail With Advisers—Will Complete It Today

IT MAY BE RATHER SHORT

Two Platforms Presented to Chicago Conventions Discussed and That of the Republicans Considered "Innocuous."

Washington, June 9.—At the last cabinet meeting before the St. Louis convention President Wilson and his advisers today went over details of a platform for the Democrats and discussed the platforms of the progressives and Republicans.

The President's draft of planks will be completed tomorrow. Today he carefully examined the platform adopted by the Republicans and then approved by the resolutions committee of the Progressives. Members of the cabinet who discussed the subject with the President said they considered the Republica nplatform "innocuous" and declared that the Democratic platform will be more progressive.

Most of the influential advisors of the President want the platform made as short as possible, and still contain references to the achievements of the administration.

Reports of proceedings in the Republican and Progressive conventions were laid before the cabinet and discussed in detail. On developments at Chicago wil depend in some measure the Democratic platform and the speech which Senator James will make in St. Louis as permanent chairman. Senator James talked over the matter with the President during the morning.

Administration officials said today that no effort would be made to force the platform drafted here on the convention. It is being taken for granted, however, that the planks framed by the President will be incorporated in the platform in practically the form in which he is writing them.

would await the action of the men who robbed us in 1912."

Protests Against Action Taken.

He said he had yielded to delay only at Colonel Roosevelt's request. "But I want to say," he continued, "no matter what transpired tonight or tomorrow a joint obligation or none, yours is the obligation to keep the faith.

"God finds us tonight—oh God, help us—finds us sitting at the feet of Reed Smoot and Murray Crane.

"I make my protest against what has been done today and the last two days by the Progressive party. We've lingered so long 24 hours will do us no more harm.

"But when that is over you and I, my friends, will preserve the Progressive party," he concluded.

His pent up indignation sent the convention into another outburst.

George W. Perkins Praised.

Delegate Merle D. Vincent, of Colorado, was recognized and insisted, that the regular order be proceeded with. He praised George W. Perkins, bitterly assailed "the Reed Smoots and Murray Cranes," who, he said, had more experience but less principle in political conventions.

"The Republican leaders know we have a pat hand," he said, "and they're trying to make us lay down by raising the ante."

Mr. Vincent said the delegates would defer to Governor Johnson's request to further postpone Colonel Roosevelt's nomination. 'And then," he said, "we will proceed to execute the commission for which we came here."

Henry Allen said he also agreed with Governor Johnson's wishes and did so without regret.

Coliseum a Dreary Place.

He said he had just left the Coliseum and that it was about the dreariest, most stolid looking bunch of delegates he ever saw.

"I saw some favorite sons who would give a million dollars a minute for some of this enthusiasm," he said.

"I've felt your steam roller this afternoon," he said, and the crowd laughed again when some delegate blew two short shrill blasts on a whistle.

The convention shouted its joy over Mr. Allen's statement that Senator Lodge voted for Colonel Roosevelt on the second ballot.

Allan Placates Delegates.

"I want you to feel that we've made no mistake—that we stand at the threshold of success," he continued.

Mr. Allen said that Justice Hughes would soon be at the maximum of his strength.

"Those stand-patters only hate Hughes a little less than they hate Roosevelt," he asserted. He appealed to the convention to "exercise self-control and not to fly off the handle."

While Governor Johnson had aroused the delegates, the speech of Mr. Allen apparently placated them until they were more responsive to the plan of deferring nominations until tomorrow and waiting for another peace conference.

Chairman Dorr Carroll, of the North Dakota delegation, said that when he had been asked if he could "control his delegation, he said he sometimes had difficulty in controlling himself."

Prepare for Third Party Ticket.

William Flynn, of Pennsylvania, praised George W. Perkins and said he had "something in his system" he was not going to let out.

"You needn't have, for one moment, any apprehension that this bunch down at the Coliseum is going to put it over on us," he said. "You take it from me, we're playing the game right. We know we may have to go to the bat with a third party ticket and we want to go in good shape.

"They accuse me of having some time been a boss. I don't know about that. I may have done it inadvertently."

Wilmington golf entnusiasts and others have been much interests in the championship flight of the Carolina Amateur golf tournament in Charlotte the past two days and especially in the records of the two Wilmington men taking part, Messrs. C. E. Taylor and J. W. Stanley. Both the Wilmington men won yesterday and will meet their oponents this afternoon in the finals of Thursday's playing, the Charlotte Observer of yesterday had this to say:

"Charlotte's golf star still seems to be in the ascendancy, for Paul and Brem won two matches each yesterday in the championship flight and the Mecklenburg Club is apparently certain to have a player fighting for the amateur title in the Carolina tournament.

Paul first disposed of Cothran, of Greenville, and then won a fine match from Fred Hyatt, Jr., of Columbia. The young representative from the Ridgewood Club played a pretty game and the match was all square at the ninth hole. At the fifteenth, Paul was two up and three to go, but Hyatt won a hole and leaving the next, the Charlotte crack was only one up when they drove from the eighteenth tee. Both contestants teed off badly, but recovered well, Paul a little better than Hyatt, and it was soon plain that the local man had the hole. Paul finished with a win on the eighteenth, giving him the match, two up.

Doctor Stanley, of Wilmington, beat W. H. Knight, of Asheville, and then disposed of Whitsitt, after a fine match. The doctor from the Cape Fear Club has covered himself with glory so far. Brem, of Charlotte, won from Robertson, of Wilmington, and later easily defeated his clubmate, Laxton, who hasn't been going well for some time. Laxton had previously defeated Gates, 2 and 1.

"C. E. Taylor, Jr., of Wilmington, won from Dan Crawford, of Columbia, after an exciting game, one up on the eighteenth green and later on, disposed of the young Greensboro crack, Malcolm Jones. The Gate City player had previously beaten Lambert, of Asheville, five and four. This leaves four players in the semi-finals, Paul vs. Stanly and Brem vs. Taylor; two from Charlotte and two from Wilmington. The City by the Sea has certainly covered itself with glory, having three players to contest in the championship flight out of the five entrants."

nomination of Colonel Roosevelt the police had to be sent to the galleries to stop women tearing buuting from the railings. Otherwise the demonstrations, although noisy and prolonged, were good natured and orderly.

Tomorrow the convention leaders expect to dispose of both presidential and vice-presidential nominations.

When the delegates take their seats at 11 o'clock for the third ballot it will be Hughes against the field.

The total vote of the convention fixed by the Credentials committee at 989 was reduced to 987 because the two Porto Rican delegates failed to qualify. This reduced the number necessary for a nomination to 494 instead of 495 as previously announced.

LIVER ACHING BADLY, STOMACH FULL OF GAS

Wine Glass Full of Tollo Water Will Start Your Liver and Relieve Your Stomach in Half an Hour

The liver frequently becomes clogged because we eat too much rich food and take too little exercise. If it is kept clean and active we would never have sour, gassy stomachs, sallow skin or become constipated and bilious.

Calomel and other strong drugs are dangerous, they weaken the system, salivate or irritate, and should be avoided. Instead take about a third of a tumbler of Tollo Water in a glass of plain water before breakfast. In about half an hour it will flush all the bile and waste matter from your system. You will be surprised and pleased at how quickly and thoroughly it acts. Your headache will disappear at once, your eyes will become bright and clear, your meals will no longer distress you by forming gas that bloats the stomach.

Tollo is a concentrated water from Dawson Springs, the famous Kentucky health resort. Its use will keep the liver active because it flushes—really bathes the liver, dissolving the obstructions and washing out the bile tubes. It will keep the bowels regular as a clock and prevent the accumulation of waste which sours in the stomach and makes every meal a torture.

You can get a 15-cent bottle from any druggist and should take a little every morning until the system has been thoroughly cleaned of the bile it has absorbed. After the first day you will notice the skin begin to clear up and in a few days your natural healthy color will return and you will wake up with a clear head and the same joyous energy you had when a child.

CALOMEL DYNAMITES YOUR LIVER! MAKES YOU SICK AND SALIVATES

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and You Don't Lose a Day's Work

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working; headache and dizziness gone; stomach will be sweet and bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of Calomel is almost stopped entirely here.

WORKING OUT PRIZE LIST

Contest Schedule of New Hanover Fishing Club Will Be Announced Latter Part of June.

With real summer fishing weather at hand, and prospects for a good season of sport, the members of the New Hanover Fishing Club will be interested in the announcement that the contest schedule and list of prizes is now being worked out by the committee in charge, and will be announced as soon as complete, probably some time the latter part of June.

The club has already awarded two prizes this season, one for the first dru mcaught, which was won by Mr. Hall, of Winter Park, and the other for the largest drum caught up to June 1, which was won by Mr. J. I. Campbell. Two bass prizes are offered for June, for the largest and second largest of the month. These prizes will be an extension butt rest and a 200 yard line.

Wilmington merchants will be given an opportunity to contribute to the club's prize list again this season. The response on their part last year was very generous, and the club greatly appreciated the support given it in this manner. A committee has been appointed and within the next few days will call upon the merchants of the city and solicit a donation of some article of merchandise if the merchant cares to contribute.

The territory in which fish eligible for monthly prizes may be caught has been enlarged this year to take in all territory between the northern side of Rich Inlet and the Southern side of New Inlet, or the nearest inlet, which was the limit at that end last year.

All members of the club are reminded that their catch must be witnessed by another, or preferably two more persons, and that it must either be weighed by a member of the contest committee, or the witnesses who saw it weighed must sign a naffidavit before a member of the contest committee or a notary public. If weighed on other than the official scales of the club such scales must be checked up with the official scales.

Official club scales are to be found at Newman's restaurant, in the city; at the Seashore hotel cafe at Wrightsville Beach, and at the store of Mr J. M. Bruner at Carolina Beach, and members are urged to weigh in their fish on these scales whenever possible.

WHITEVILLE TEAM WINS FROM CLARKTON BY SCORE OF 6 TO 4

Whiteville, N. C., June 9.—After losing four straight games, despite a playing average of .923, Whiteville came back today in regular style and won from Clarkton, on the latter's home grounds, by a score of 6 to 4.

started the afternoon's festivities in the first inning, by putting three runners over the rubber as a result of the loose fielding of the home team. Clarkton scored twice in the first and as many again in the third. Whiteville tied it up in the seventh inning, and cinched it in the ninth, by putting two more runners across the pan.

Hickman was batted freely in the first three innings but was master of the situation after the fourth. Hardee for Whiteville pulled the sensational catch of the afternoon, when he pulled down a line drive in right center with runners on. Cromartie starred with the stick, for the home team, and Cashwell and Grady for the locals.

ANOTHER "JOE BROWN CLUB"

Fairmont Voters Get in Line Behind the Columbus Man.

(By Long Distance Telephone.)

Fairmont, N. C., June 3.—Friends of the Hon. J. A. Brown, of Columbus, met in the town hall here tonight and enthusiastically formed the "Fairmont Joe Brown Club" with 43 charter members. E. V. Daniel, a leading business man here, was elected president of the club and John H. Johnson secretary. The club will get actively behind the Columbus man and hopes to roll up a good majority for him here in the second primary, July 1.

The membership of the club would have been much larger but for a counter-attraction in a big Woodmen of the World gathering in another part of town.

Official War Statements

FRANCE

Paris, June 9.—The official communication this evening reads:

"On the left bank of the Meuse the Germans during the day several times attacked our position on Hill 304. Two attacks west of the hill and two others southwest, which were accompanied by projections of liquid fire, failed completely under our fires.

"On the right bank of the Meuse the bombardment was very heavy in all the region south of the Thiaumont farm, in the Chapitre wood, in the Fumin wood and in the secto. to the south of Damloup. No infantry attack occurred during the day.

"In the Vosges a strong German reconnaissance at Hartmansweiler kopf was dispersed by our fire."

RUSSIA

Petrograd, via London, June 9.—The official communication issued by the Russian war office today follows:

"The battle continues in Volhynia and Galicia, the Germans trying to check the development of our offensive on their pieced front. German reinforcements have arrived from the region north of Poliessie. Many Germans are among the prisoners taken.

"Despite the stubborn resistance of the enemy in many places, our offensive continues over the whole front from the Pripet marshes to the Rumanian frontier.

"Our cavalry led the attack in many sectors. Among the episodes during the fighting were first, near Sousek, east of Lutsk, a squadron of Cossacks attacked the enemy behind the fortifications and captured two guns and two hundred boxes of ammunition, second near Boiratno, southeast of Lutsk, our skirmishes captured two 10-centimetre guns, four officers and 160 men and near Dobriatrne on the Ikwa below Mlynoff, another ten-centimettre gun and 35 cassons. In another sector the booty included thirty cylinders of asphyxiating gas.

"Our young soldiers are rivaling their elders in pluck and courage. One such division of young troops in an impetuous attack at Opolichenie drove the enemy back on the Styr and captured bridgehead near the town of Rozieschy. They took 2,500 German and Austrian prisoners together with machine guns and rich booty.

"While directing the action General Mikouline was seriously wounded.

"We have crossed the Stripa river and our troops have reached the river Zlota Lipa at Potok.

"The number of our prisoners is constantly increasing. In addition to the 958 officers and over 51,000 men already announced, we took in the course of yesterday's fighting an additional 185 officers and 13,714 men, making our total of captures in the recent operations 1,143 officers and over 64,714 men.

"Wednesday evening enemy artillery bombarded violently the regions northeast of Grevo and south of Smorgon.

"Subsequently the bombardment extended further north and Thursday night the enemy, in strong force, opened an offensive, but all his attempts to approach our positions were repulsed. Five German aviators raided the town of Logichine, north of Pinsk, dropping fifty bombs. One of the machines was brought down by our artiliery inside the German lines.

"Caucasus front: In the Trebizond region our skirmishers dislodged the Turks from a convent south of the village of Hortonkop. In the direction of Giumichekahn our detachments penetrated enemy positions, capturing prisoners and much war material. We repulsed an enemy counter attack."

WILL THEY SELL AMERICAN BONDS TO LIVE IN ENGLAND?

United States Citizens Not Exempt From British Securities Act.

London, June 9.—Americans domiciled here who are subject to the income tax must sell to or deposit with the British government the American securities under penalty of an extra two shillings tax. This information is given to the Associated Press today by an official of the American dollar securities committee. The ruling holds whether the securities are held here or in America. The tax of two shillings, added to the income tax, will apply to Americans who have resided here long enough to become subject to the regular income tax, the incidence of which will be followed except that no abatement will be granted on American securities which appear on the government's lists. If American securities are deposited with the government only the usual income tax with the ordinary abatements will be charged, but the government prefers to purchase the securities outright.

In the event that Americans resident here deposit their American securities held in the United States the government will collect the interest and pay it to the owners in sterling.

NAVY AVIATOR KILLED

Lieut. R. C. Saufley Meets Death While Flying Over Santa Rosa Island.

Pensacola, Fla., June 9.—Lieutenant R. C. Saufley, navy aviator, was killed when his machine fell on Santa Rosa island this afternoon. It is reported one of the tail pieces of the machine became deranged causing Saufley to lose control.

Lieutenant Saufley established a world's record for high flying in a hydroplane on March 29 when he ascended to 16,072 feet. He was considered one of the best aviators in the service.

He was 32 years of age and was a native of Kentucky. He was appointed from that state in 1904 and had been attached to the Pensacola station since January, 1915.

London, June 9.—General Joffre, the French commander in chief, is in London. He attended an important conference at the foreign office Friday with Paul Cambon, the French ambassador, Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, and the members of the war council.

TOP O' THE MORNING.

Never to tire, never to grow cold, to be patient, sympathetic, tender, to look for the budding flower, the opening heart ,to hope always, to be loyal always—this is duty.
—DR. JOHN LILLIE.

Old ships are having a tough time of it during this war. None of their new ships get sunk, so they must be putting everything off on the old type of war ships.

We may not know anything on whoever is to be the Republican nominee for president, but of course we can find out a whole lot on him if he tries hard to beat Wilson.

The new slogan of the Woman's Party is "Give a woman a man's chance." If they are not particular we will let some of them have our chance, if they don't mind taking chances.

When the Southern Railway completes the contracts given out for double-tracking about 35 or 40 miles in North Carolina, the entire distance between Washington and Charlotte will be double-tracked.

A man in New York struck a match to find a gas leak. Of course, it is useless to relate what always happens to men who think a lighted match is a proper aid for a bonehead who is endeavoring to trail a gas leak.

The Progressive national convention at Chicago is willing to come to a harmonious understanding with the Republicans if they will incorporate Progressive principles in their platform and help to nominate Roosevelt or whoever Roosevelt wants for President.

One curious thing about mossbacks is that they invariably get their backs up when progress is proposed. If mossbacks were to back the progressive movement contemplated at a certain one of our South Atlantic ports, they would be in danger of falling dead.

If Georgia continues to make progress she should quit dragging Tom Watson along with her as a sort of humanized stumbling block. Tom is one of Georgia's worst signs, although we heard a Georgian declare the other day that Tom Watson is the smartest man in the world. Of course, the Georgian entertains that idea because he has never seen any of them but Tom. Anyhow, he is wise enough to stay in Georgia, where he has a good chance to make trouble.

The idea that gold shrinks in value! Prices of commodities rise or fall according to the law of supply and demand. The value of gold remains at 100 cents on the dollar as a medium of exchange, but the 100 cents buys more or buys less of this or that because the articles to be purchased are either plentiful or scarce. A dollar buys less of gasoline than formerly but it isn't because the value of 100 cents has decreased. It is because of the kind of sense that controls the American trust system built up by the stupidity of the Republican party.

A once wealthy Frenchman, now impoverished because his estate has been ravished by numerous battles during the past sixteen months, gives us a good illustration of the meaning of trade. He was told where he could buy something to eat, but he replied that knowing where to buy was a matter of no consequence. Having money with which to buy is the main thing. So he declared that a man who has nothing to sell has no way of getting the money with which to buy. Neither does he have one commodity that he can exchange for another. He explained further that two men who have nothing can't possibly trade with each other, nor could they trade with a man who has something to sell. He recognized that his plight was a sad one, but he also recognized the fact that a man with nothing to sell or exchange can't buy a thing from a man who has a store crammed with something for sale. Production alone is wealth.

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR ALL

Who would care to live in or own a country in which the small man did not have equal privileges and opportunities with the biggest man in the country? What man could be loyal to a country that allowed special privileges to a class which would use them to oppress, crush and destroy the small man? What man would care to own a country that did not protect the weak from the strong? What man would care to take chances on existing in a country in which every man, rich and poor, did not have an equal showing in business, manufacturing, industry, agriculture and commerce?

For one we are glad that we have one party in the United States which has stood from the days of George Washington for "equal rights for all, special privileges for none." That very idea is carried out in the act of the Democratic Congress in establishing the Federal Trade Commission. It embodies the Democratic idea that we can do all the big business we want to do just so we don't put little business out of business. That is right, and the Federal Trade Commission is a good thing, for it stands for all. It is not against big business, nor little business, unless they become piratical and therefore intolerable among free people.

Chairman Joseph E. Davies, of the Federal Trade Commission, writes in the Manufacturers Record of June 8th an article in which he outlines the plans and purposes of the Commission and sets forth in an illuminating way the work which it is doing to prevent monopoly and to give "democracy of opportunities" to all industries. Every man in America except the shark class ought to subscribe to that good old Democratic idea carried out in a law urged by President Wilson.

While others were going around the country talking about a "square deal" and never providing a way to secure it for us, a Democratic President and Congress have seen to it that we have one more statute and a commission to see that we get it by law when we can't get it in any other way. That is the concrete substance which takes the place of hot air and hollow sound.

"We seek to build up and not to destroy" is the watchword of the Federal Trade Commission, so no interests need fear it unless they are doing illegitimate business and dread being caught at it. Editor Edmonds, of the Record, says Chairman Davies' article is the most illuminating outline that has ever been printed concerning the Trade Commission. He adds:

"Autocracy and monopoly naturally go hand in hand. Democracy and monopoly are opposed. From this point of view and from various other angles Mr. Davies broadly discusses the work of the Commission, its relation to industry, its ability to prevent monopoly and to uphold individual enterprise, and thus to give to all the people of all classes the opportunity to develop efficiency and success. This is the most comprehensive statement which has ever been put forth regarding the Federal Trade Commission and its aims for the betterment of business interests."

The establishment of the Federal Trade Commission is one more Democratic and constructive institution that a grateful nation ought to receive with sincere gratitude. While politicians are ranting around handing out short-measure buncombe, the Democratic administration has been doing things to preserve the rights and privileges of the people—all the people—not the privileged few.

THE BIGGEST CITY RACE

The 1910 census gave Winston-Salem the third place among North Carolina cities as to population. Charlotte stood at the head of the list and Wilmington second, just the reverse of the 1900 census. A Winston-Salem man now goes around sticking his thumbs through the armholes of his vest and claims that the next census will see the Twin City go to the second place with the probability that she will give Charlotte a close rub for the metropolitan honors. The secret of Winston-Salem's growth is that she has become North Carolina's leading manufacturing city, with an annual factory products value of more than $45,000,000.

Winston-Salem's manufacturing industries furnish a living for two-thirds of her population, while one factory alone supports one-third of all the people in the city. The city's largest industry is that of manufacturing plug tobacco, smoking tobacco, cigarettes and snuff, although there are other industries that came into existence because the tobacco industry called for boxes, shipping packages, hogsheads, bags, etc. possibly a part of the industry itself.

Winston-Salem exports millions of dollars' worth of her products and imports hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of materials that enter into the manufacture of tobaccos. The mere fact that she was recently made a port of entry has put her on the map, along with the fact that this North Carolina city is the world's leading tobacco manufacturing city. Commerce and Finance, of New York, thus notes the compelling importance of that city:

"Despite the fact that Winston-Salem is situated about 200 miles from the seaboard in North Carolina, it has been designated as a port of entry by the customs officials—so enormous are its imports of sugar, licorice and tobacco. This condition is due to the great growth of the dual city in tobacco manufacturing which has increased over 370 per cent. in output value since 1900. St. Louis, considered the chief tobacco manufacturing city of the United States until recently, was but $66,000 ahead of Winston-Salem in value of manufactured tobacco products for 1914, and it is believed that Winston-Salem has passed St. Louis by this time.

"Significant of its enormous yield of revenue to the government, is the fact that eight days after the government had completed a $250,000 postoffice building for Winston-Salem the city had paid for it in tobacco revenues. Revenue stamps used in that city in 1915 amounted to $7,123,278, a weekly average of $136,000. The largest tobacco plant in the city is that of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, which supports about one-third of the population.

"Salem is the older of the two towns, being a Moravian settlement 200 years old. In it is Salem College which Mrs Stonewall Jackson and Mrs. James K. Polk attended. Winston has a population of 17,000 and Salem 5,500."

Probably the population of the Twin City is now more than 25,000, and growing constantly because there is employment there for people. It is a good story to repeat, for the example is one of significant impressiveness.

If Winston-Salem had shipped her raw material away to be manufactured, she would have been a mere shipping station. However, the opportunity was there for manufacturing and Winston-Salem never overlooked it.

How mush raw materials do North Carolina communities ship away to be brought back in the finished state, at five times the cost? It is a wonder the manufacturing committees of the commercial organizations do not investigate and make a report about it. It would give them plenty to do.

"A CLOSED PORT."

Such was the ominous title of the leading editorial in yesterday's Charlotte Observer with reference to Wilmington in view of new tariff changes made recently by the Clyde Steamship Company, which serves the port of Wilmington. The Observer takes it seriously and thus expresses its views:

"In an order recently issued by the Clyde Line Steamship Company and effective on the 21st of this month should go into operation, the port of Wilmington will be virtually closed to through business between North and South Carolina points and New York. The present tariff of the Clyde Line has been in effect since July, 1910. It gave through class and commodity rates between New York and local and junction points in the two states named, by way of Wilmington. The proposed abrogation of these rates would not have the effect of advancing rates except through the port of Wilmington, the rate being made instead through Norfolk, which is the most expeditious route. But the Norfolk route has been embargoed for some time past by reason of congestion and longshoremen strikes, and the closing of the port of Wilmington would leave no through rail and water rates in effect between New York and North Carolina points. South Carolina business, of course, could be served through Charleston. Mr. W. S. Creighton, the alert traffic manager of Charlotte, has enlisted the interest of Corporation Commissioner Travis and the Chamber of Commerce of Wilmington in an effort to have the order suspended and invoking an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It might be that the business interests of the State have not been duly appreciative of the advantages offered by the Clyde Line. It is more than likely that a lack of business will be advanced in justification of the rescinding of the Wilmington rates, but if the port is closed all opportunity for the development of traffic through Wilmington will have been taken away. It would seem to be a matter of the greatest importance to the State to keep Wilmington an open port and the agitation of the matter might serve the purpose of developing a business by that route which in the end would justify the Clyde Line in not only maintaining the present schedule, but of eventually offering greater inducements to the commercial interests of North Carolina."

The fact is the change to be made by the Clyde Line will not affect the port of Wilmington at all. The Observer guessed it right when it remarked that "it might be that the business interests of the State have not been duly appreciative of the advantages offered by the Clyde Line." The withdrawal of the through rate by water and rail to the interior points will not affect Wilmington at all, and it won't affect interior points, for they have never used their port. They should have done so, but it was an opportunity which they have never taken into consideration. It is entirely to the advantage of interior points and it is they which should wake up and realize the oportunity that once was theirs.

A "BETWEEN US GIRLS" SPEECH

As great and patriotic an address as was that which Associate Justice Chas. E. Hughes delivered to those high school girls at Washington a few days ago, the Bull Moosers at Chicago are calling it a talk "Just Between Us Girls," and they are declaring that Hughes has been "eliminated by his cream puff speech." Nothing was ever more narrow minded than the utterances of the Progressives who are employing every means to prevent the nomination of Hughes by the Republican convention.

Justice Hughes uttered patriotic American sentiments that will last longer than the Bull Moose party, but they declared that his words did not satisfy them as to how he stands. They prefer to allude to his really great speech as having a kind of "Beyond the Alps Lies Italy" ring to it. It only goes to show the kind of low slung politics that seems to prevail generally in this country.

The fact is the Progressives went to Chicago to nominate the Bull Moose and nobody else will suit them. They will work every sort of trick to keep the Republicans from nominating anybody but Teddy.

We once knew a man who was once a dyed in the wool Democrat, but the Democratic party made so many mistakes that he quit. It made a mistake in six campaigns by its failure to nominate him for an office. He persisted in trying to get an office, but finally concluded that the party was not worth anything to him—in a purely personal way.

Says the Augusta Chronicle: "George W. Perkins says he doesn't know what the Progressive convention will do." We are surprised at that, for way down here in Carolina we know two things it will do. It will do what Roosevelt wants it to do, and it will do Hughes if there is any way to do him.

CURRENT COMMENT

The announcement that the Roper Lumber Company is seriously considering establishing passenger service on its railroad through Jones, Onslow and Duplin counties should be good news to the business interests of this city. This railroad runs through a splendid territory and if the proper schedules are inaugurated the service will be of inestimable value to this city. A committee from the Chamber of Commerce has been apointed to consult with the officials of the lumber company to see if it cannot be arranged to have the train come to New Bern in the morning and leave on its return in the afternoon. It is hoped that such a schedule will be adopted. This new railroad service will mean more business for New Bern merchants and will open up to them a territory heretofore out of their reach. The road runs to Chinquepin, Duplin county, a section from which this town has in the past drawn very little business.—New Bern Sun-Journal.

As the dispatches give us to understand it, the Republicans want the Roosevelt vote next November. They are willing, if they may profit thereby, to concede veto power to Mr. Roosevelt, in most all party affairs. They are willing to accept the social service features of the Progressive platform, the features now so strongely neglected by the Progressives themselves, that presumably mark the difference between the new party and the old. They are willing to concede all, and to agree to all; only they will not take Roosevelt. Hamlet must be left out. Now let us take the other side of the picture. Mr. Roosevelt wants the Republican vote. For all the world knows, Mr. Roosevelt is still a Progressive, and if he should address the Republican convention it would be in response to an invitation, formally extended. Mr. Roosevelt is not asking his own party to permit him to lead a fight for principles, for which the delegates, under the stage management of Hiram Johnson and Victor Murdock, are shouting. Mr. Roosevelt does not ask to be permitted to lead a forlorn hope for righteousness sake. Swept by a wave of ecstatic emotionalism the delegates at the Auditorium wore themselves down with shouting. And while this long drawn out wave of hysteria was rocking the Auditorium, what other scenes do we witness? The long distance telephone, from the Blackstone to Oyster Bay, is in use. At one end, if a number of chroniclers are to be believed, is Mr. Roosevelt. At the other end is Boise Penrose. Banked about the Pennsylvania Boss, as the talk proceeds, is Henry Cabot Lodge, and an assortment of the millionaire spokesmen of Steel and the shell makers. In 1912 Penrose had a string of delegates, and when he did not get them, Penrose became, in the Roosevelt classification, a vicious machine boss, to whose extermination the energies of all decent and patriotic Americans should address themselves. Now Penrose has another string of delegates, and Mr. Roosevelt, wanting them again, talks things over with the Boss, while the Progressives address themselves to There will be more crises in the futheir noisy, but semi-religious rites. ture. In the days to come, many are persuaded, there will be trying times for the Republic, and profound readjustments must come. Are the things we have recited all that Chicago has to offer?—Greensboro News. (Ind.)

SEVERE PUNISHMENT

Of Mrs. Chappell, of Five Years' Standing, Relieved by Cardui.

Mt. Airy, N. C.—Mrs. Sarah M. Chappell of this town, says: "I suffered for five years with womanly troubles, also stomach troubles, and my punishment was more than any one could tell.

I tried most every kind of medicine, but none did me any good.

I read one day about Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I decided to try it. I had not taken but about six bottles until I was almost cured. It did me more good than all the other medicines I had tried, put together.

My friends began asking me why I looked so well, and I told them about Cardui. Several are now taking it."

Do you, lady reader, suffer from any of the ailments due to womanly trouble, such as headache, backache, sideache, sleeplessness, and that everlastingly tired feeling?

If so, let us urge you to give Cardui a trial. We feel confident it will help you, just as it has a million other women in the past half century.

Begin taking Cardui to-day. You won't regret it. All druggists.

Life Conservation

DISEASE prevention, which means life conservation, is the basis of twentieth century medicine. The idea is of course old; but it has a new meaning in modern preventive medicine—that babe in the family of sciences—for which Pasteur was the accoucheur, and which Koch and his associate doctors nurtured into lusty and combative adolescence. That child of mother hygeia, with its microscope and its culture tube in lieu of sword and buckler, seeks to banish from human experience all infections, to make man like the oyster which (so it has been declared) has no disease—is either healthy or dead. Professor Irving Fisher has computed that the span of life in these United States could be increased fifteen years if all the hygienic reforms now known were put into effect. And he outlines an excellent plan for better health protection by federal, State and municipal governments, with the co-operation of "unofficial" agencies now benignantly active for better health among our people. Most health departments are indeed laboring most assiduously to practicalize the findings of preventive medicine. For but one instance: Dr. Herman M. Biggs, the Health Commissioner of New York State, writes in the 35th Annual Report of his Department that thirty millions of dollars are lost the commonwealth every year by reason of preventable illness; not to speak of the sufferings and misfortunes no monetary consideration can be made of. And the amount his department requires is no more than 2 or 3 per cent. of that which will inevitably be lost to the State unless the experience of the past is definitely changed. This Commissioner would have his Department save 10,000 lives annually and to make the State death rate as low, if not lower, than that of the metropolis—if he can have the money to this end. And in his score or more of years of health work, Dr. Biggs has remarkably made good as to the tasks he has set himself—a fact sanitarians the world over have delighted to emphasize.

WARTS.

L. M. writes: I have about a dozen warts on my hands, and still more coming. What causes them and is there a good cure for them? I have several of several years growth.

Answer: Warts are overgrowths of the epidermis, the false skin. Doctors remove these by means of caustics (too dangerous for the inexperienced to use) by cutting out or scraping away and by the use of the electrolytic needle. Get of the druggist a solution of one ounce of collodion, thirty grains of salicylic acid and five grains of cannabis indica. Keep this tightly corked. At night keep painting this over your warts. Then as the warts soften gently scrape away the softened parts. Then reapply the collodion until the warts have disappeared.

RESTRICTED DIET.

Answer to R. A. B.: During treatment for stomach troubles or when the digestion is impaired, doctors put patients on restricted diet. Some or all of following articles are usually forbidden: Rich soups and chowders, all fried foods, veal, pork, liver, kidney, hashes, stews, pickled and corned, preserved and potted meats, turkey, goose, duck, sausage, salmon, salt mackerel, bluefish, sturgeon, eels, shrimps, sardines, lobsters, crabs, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, string beans, parsnips, egg-plant, turnips, carrots, squash, oyster plant, sweet potatoes, beets, pastry, pies, made dishes, nuts, dates, jams, dried and candied fruits, candies, cheese, strong tea, icewater, malt liquors, sweet and effervescent wines.

RATS.

Answer to P. D.: The rat is, after all, an index of unhygienic conditions, of filth, of putrescence; he is oftentimes, under civic conditions at least, one of nature's scavengers. Rats, unless they would starve, must necessarily desert houses properly constructed, well-drained and clean from the foundations up, for places more congenial to their alimentary needs.

TWO NEGROES ARE GIVEN LONG TERMS IN ROADS

By Recorder on Charges Ranging From Assault to Housebreaking.

The chief sufferer at yesterday morning's session of the Recorder's court was Herbert Graham, colored, who was given an aggregate term of 20 months on the county roads on three separate charges, and in addition was held for the next term of Superior Court on a housebreaking charge. The next heaviest sufferer was Tom Hall, colored, who was tried on three charges and sentenced to 13 months. Each of the two negroes received 12 months for the larceny of seven hams from Armour & Co.'s delivery wagon, while the driver was making deliveries to customers Thursday morning.

When Graham was arrested by Plainclothesman D. W. Coleman, he resisted and drew a pistol which was later identified as being one was stolen several days ago, when the house of Lizzie Turner, colored, was entered and robbed. The defendant drew six months for resisting an officer, and was held for Superior Court and committed to the county jail on the housebreaking charge. He was given 60 days in addition for assault with deadly weapon on Annie Hilton, colored. Hall in addition to the year's term for the larceny of the hams, was given 30 days on an assault charge.

It is probable an additional larceny charge will be preferred against Hall as Mr. H. R. Kuhl has identified the tub of butter found with the hams in a yard of a vacant house by Officer B. W. Jacobs, as having been stolen from his store at Eighth and Bladen streets. According to the police a colored woman is ready to swear that she saw Hall carrying it Thursday morning. Officers T. M. Hall and W. H. Kermon assisted in the working up of the cases against the two defendants.

CHRISTIAN MEN MEET AROUND BANQUET BOARD

Discuss Ways And Means Of Spreading Christ's Kingdom

Representatives of All Denominations Meet in Notable Gathering—Inspiring Addresses by Laymen and Pastors.

Actuated by the common purpose of spreading Christ's kingdom among men, particularly in Wilmington, more than 300 men gathered around banquet tables in Woolvin hall last evening in this city at the organization meeting of the Christian Men's League. The occasion was a notable one and was marked by inspiring addresses by ministers and laymen on how best to achieve the objects for which the organization was formed.

Following the organization of the league and the addresses it was unanimously voted that a telegram should be sent to Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Mr. Charles M. Alexander at Keene, N. H., where they are now conducting meetings, assuring the evangelists of the continued interest of the men of Wilmington in the work in which they are engaged.

It was unanimously voted that a committee be appointed to take steps to wards sending a large delegation to Charleston, S. C., where Dr. Chapman and Mr. Alexander are to conduct meetings next January, before the evangelistic campaign in that city begins, to aid in preparing the way for the beginning of the evangelistic campaign in that city.

George B. Elliott, Esq., president of the League, presided at the gathering last evening. With the Acme Male Quartette as leaders at intervals during the evening some of the favorite Alexander hymns were sung including "Shine," "Jesus Passed Through Jericho" and "I Am a Pilgrim." The meeting adjourned with the singing of the long meter doxology and the benediction by Rev. G. W. McClanahan.

The banquet was opened at 8 o'clock with the blessing by Rev. Dr. A. D. McClure. The luncheon was served by a committee of ladies, who had prepared a most appetizing meal. The hall had been decorated with American flags and bunting. A committee of men with Mr. N. M. McEachern as chairman had arranged the affair and they were extended a vote of thanks the efficient way in which they did their work. Mr. J. F. Woolvin very generously furnished the hall for the meeting.

Mr. J. Allan Taylor, chairman of the committee, appointed at the first meeting of the league during the Chapman-Alexander meetings to form a constitution and by-laws, submitted the report.

The object of the league was stated as being the spread of Christ's kingdom among men and the encouragement of regular attendance on church services. The officers of the League recommended were a president, a vice president and a secretary with an executive committee composed of a representative fro meach congregation. All communicants of the church are eligible to membership. Each congregation is requested to form a committee of ten which shall select the representative on the executive committee and serve as his adviser.

The proposed constitution was unanimously adopted on motion of Dr. C. P. Bolles and at the suggestion of Dr. McClure it was voted that the temporary officers previously named shall serve for the ensuing year. They are as follows: President, George B. Elliott, Esq.; vice president, Col. Walker Taylor; secretary, Mr. Dozier L. Latta.

Before throwing the meeting open for general discussion Mr. Elliott stated that he had been very much impressed with the great opportunity that the gathering afforded. "If we join together we can do great things for this community," he declared. "The strongest point about this meeting is that every congregation in Wilmington is represented and we stand here shoulder to shoulder for one purpose. Gentlemen this is a big thing."

In calling on those who spoke Mr. Elliott stated that he desired that at least one minister and one laymen from each denomination would have something to say. He first called on Rev. Dr. J. M. Wells, who was chairman of the executive committee for the Chapman-Alexander meetings.

"This is indeed a splendid sight to behold," said Dr. Wells. "There is but one thing that i fear and that we may fail to see the way, may fail to grasp and that we may fail to accomplish all that we should." Dr. Wells confessed that he had not been able to grasp just what should be the primary object but explained that while the way was somewhat vague to him he felt that certainly a general catholicity should result from it and that everyone present ought to love his fellowman better and should strive to eliminate friction, do away with jealousy and that all ought to be united for the saving of souls.

Mr. L. E. Hall, president of the Chamber of Commerce, declared that while he did not believe in one great big church for all yet he did feel that all Christians should be bound together by a common cause.

Rev. M. T. Plyler spoke particularly of the one of the dangers now confronting the churches in failing to interest the middle classes. This has been a very real danger in the Northern cities, he stated, and he was afraid that the South might have a similar experience. Such a gathering he thought was a long step in the direction of eliminating it in Wilmington. He explained that Christianity is essentially a matter of personal relationship.

"We are here tonight to celebrate the priesthood of the laity," declared Rev. Dr. William H. Milton in an inspiring address." He made an eloquent appeal that those present would be as well as achieve and that everyone would realize that there is but one great name and that the call comes from Him for service. He emphasizec that fact that the Master called twelve laymen as his followers. He made an appeal that each one would go forth as a messenger for Christ and rally to the cry, "To Me."

Herbert McClammy, Esq., declared that he had never before seen such a gathering of the Christian men for a common calling. He spoke of the necessity of aiding and helping the ministers to carry on their work.

Rev. F. B. Clausen pointed out that too often men have put the church second and that to the extent that this has been done the church has failed to have its rightful place in this world.

Mr. J. Allan Taylor spoke briefly about the results of the recent evangelistic campaign. Dr. Chapman preached a Gospel, said he, that filled men

BICKETT WILL BE ASKED TO SPEAK TO DELEGATES

At Good Roads Convention at Wrightsville Beach

Official Programme Illustrated With Local Views Will Be Ready in Few Days—Wilmington Merchants to Co-Operate.

Announcement was made yesterday that among other brilliant speakers, it is planned to have Governor-elect T. W. Bickett make one of the chief addresses at the annual convention of the North Carolina Good Roads Association at Wrightsville Beach, June 21 to 23. The invitation will be extended through Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, secretary of the Association, and it i believed that he will accept.

A very elaborate programme for the convention is being prepared and will be off the press next week. This programme will constitute a handsome souvenir of Wilmington and vicinity. It will be handsomely illustrated with a birdseye view of the city, scenes on the New Hanover County highways and views of Wrightsville Beach.

The Wilmington Highway Association, through its officers, is planning to secure the co-operation of local merchants in giving publicity to the convention, which it is believed will bring 5,000 or more delegates and visitors to Wilmington. Merchants will be asked to insert the date of the convention in their advertising matter and co-operate in other ways. Much valuable publicity is being given the approaching convention by companies dealing in road building machinery and material. In practically every letter these firms sent out they add a postcript calling attention to the meeting, or else enclose a printed invitation of their own get-up.

Mr. S. F. Highsmith, of the Wilmington-Fayetteville Highway committee, of the local association; left Thursday by automobile for a trip along the route of the above-named highway armed with literature, maps and stickers; which he will distribute in an effort to work up a big delegation from points along the highway.

Work on the new auditorium on Harbor Island is being pushed to rapid completion and practically all the frame work is now in place. No difficulty is anticipated in having the auditorium in readiness for the North Carolina Good Roads Association when it convenes at the beach on June 21.

Practically all the dry goods, furniture, shoe, clothing and other general merchandise stores in Wilmington closed yesterday afternoon ,and many of the employes went down to the beach for the afternoon. Every car was filled with those who were seeking recreation and rest.

The building at Wrightsville station which is used for serving lunches and soft drinks has been completely renovated throughout. It has been neatly painted inside and out and hardly loks like the same building. This provides a most pleasant place to wait for the cars and enjoys a large patronage.

Fayetteville Observer: "Mrs. M. H. Pemberton and three boys and nurse left today to spend some time at Mrs. Parsley's cottage at Wrightsville Beach. Little David McKethan, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton, has not been well for some weeks, and every one hopes the salt air will soon make him well and strong again."

That pretty brick station with stucco finish at Wrightsville has elicited the most favorable comments from the patrons of the Tidewater Power Company. It is complete in every detail with comfortable seats for the passengers who have to wait for cars. There are hundreds of Wilmington people who go to Wrightsville in automobiles which they park in the large space which has been provided for that purpose and go over to the beach on the cars.

RAPID PROGRESS IS MADE

On Construction of Wilmington's Half-Million Dollar Customs House by Contracting Company.

Mr. Daniel A. Garber, president of the Northeastern Construction Company, which has the contract for the erection of the $500,000 Customs House which is in course of erection here, arrived in Wilmington yesterday to inspect the progress of the work which is going on under the charge of his son, Mr. Mason Garber, as chief engineer. President Garber expressed himself as being much pleased with the manner in which the work is going forward.

Work on the forms for the first 60 concrete piles which will be driven has been practically completed, and additional forms are being built rapidly.

Engineer Garbe, stated yesterday to a representative of The Star that the use of pre-moulded concrete piles is somewhat of an innovation. More than 700 of these piles will be driven through to a solid foundation of rock. They will be driven through the first strata. The piles are of reinforced concrete and weigh a little more han four tons each. A large iron head with a sharp point is placed on the end of the pile, the pile is then placed in steel casing, and the casing is really what is driven into the ground. The driving is done by a 14,000-pound hammer attached to a pile-driving apparatus. After the concrete for the piles is placed in the moulds, it takes it about a month to cure. After piling has been driven to the desired depth, the steel casing is removed.

The contracting company has opened up a handsome suite of offices in the Mafft Building at Water and Princess streets, in close proximity to the work.

Engineer Garber stated that within two weeks, the work of casting the first 60 piles will be begun, and that from that time for a period of four or five months employment will be given to about 50 laborers, all of whom except the foremen will be local men.

DEMOCRATIC VOTE IN PRIMARY ABOUT 85,000

Ninety-Four of the 100 Counties Have Reported.

Bankers State Convention in Asheville Expected to be Largely Attended—State Militia Gets Fine Report.

(Special Star Correspondence).

Raleigh, N. C., June 9.—It is believed now that the Democratic vote in the recent State-wide primaries will total more than 85,000 when all the returns are in. Returns from 94 counties give 81,605 votes. This was the vote for commissioner of labor and printing. They were divided 22,921 for Mr. Dellinger, and 58,684 for the renomination of M. L. Shipman. The latter received majorities in 88 of the 94 counties that have reported.

Adjutant General Laurence W. Young, of the North Carolina National Guard, has received the report from the War Department on the recent annual armory inspection of the companies comprising the First Infantry and it is the finest report, he says, that has ever been made on any military organization in this State. The inspection was by Major Hunt, of the United States Army. The report says the conditions were most satisfactory and gratifying to the War Department and show the companies thoroughly equipped for service and the men and officers well up in their training for military service.

Indications are that there will be an especially large attendance in Asheville June 14-16 for the twentieth annual session of the North Carolina Bankers' Association. The sessions will be at Battery Park hotel and the programme of business sessions and special social features give promise of the greatest and most delightful session the bankers have ever held.

THEATRICAL

Patrons of the screen drama who are on the alert for big productions will be grateful for the announcement of the first presentation at the Royal today of Herman Sudermann's poignant play, "The Flames of Johannis," converted into a powerful five-reel photoplay feature for the Lubin company by Edgar Lewis with Nance O'Neil in the star roles of Marika, a foundling, and Zirah, an old and dissolute gypsy. Miss O'Neil, the foremost American delineator of the tense emotional type, has found in the dual role in "The Flames of Johannis" the opportunity of her histrionic career for the full displayal of her chosen field of characterizations in which she has no rival on either stage or screen.

Between the characters of Marika and Zirah there is a wide traverse. Each of them, however, demands powerful acting and emotional climax and in each of them Miss O'Neil reaches the supreme pinnacle of her great art. Those who are acquainted with her capabilities in emotional moments will anticipate her artistic triumph in one of the scenes, it is, as described by Sudermann, "the free night."

Seldom has a star been favored with a supporting cast so strong as is to be found among the Lubin photoplayers in "The Flames of Johannis." This exceptional array of artists includes George Clarke, Victor Sutherland, Irving Dillon, James Cassady, Eleanor Barry, Ethel Tuly, Mrs. Carr, Violet Axzel and Rosemary Carr.

Comment on any direction undertaken by Edgar Lewis is unnecessary. Still, in "The Flames of Johannis" this accomplished and exacting generalissimo of the Lubin studio has gained new eminence. Altogether, "The Flames of Johannis" when revealed at the Royal today will advise students and patrons of screen drama of the dawn of a new epoch in photoplay achievement.

"The Flames of Johannis" is released through the V. L. S. E. feature programme.

Today at the Grand Theatre you'll get the biggest bargain in motion pictures you have ever had in your life. The headliner for today is nothing less than a great three-reel Triangle-Keystone comedy scream, "My Valet," starring in the leading roles, Mabel Normand, Raymond Hitchcock and Mack Sennett himself.

"My Valet" is one out of the three Triangle-Keystones ever made of more than two reels length and this in itself should have an added significance to Grand patrons. It must be "some" comedy that takes three whole reels to portray on the screen.

Mabel Normand, the greatest favorite of Keystone fame, takes a leading role opposite Raymond Hitchcock, one of the stage's foremost comedians, recently signed up to appear in Triangle-Keystone comedies exclusively. Mack Sennett, himself, the director and head of the Triangle-Keystone Company, also takes a leading part in this great scream, which doesn't let up in the fun from the first to the last flash—a solid three-quarters of an hour. You don't want to miss this great Triangle feature—at the lowest prices ever charged—five cents.

CLEO MADISON
Starring in "Virginia," at the Bijou Today.

Another big comedy feature today is "Bughouse Bell Hops," a rousing comedy scream, starring "Lonesome Luke" and his pretty co-star, Bebe Daniels. It's a scream! Four great reels of comedy—for five cents!

All-Star Line-up at Bijou.

It's a great all-star line-up at the Bijou today, the biggest bunch of stars you have seen on one day's bill in six months.

Heading the rousing programme for today is a stirring two-reel heart-interest dramatic feature, "Heart-Aches," starring the beautiful wife of Wallace Reid, Dorothy Davenport, as she is known on the scream. Co-starring with her is Emory Johnson and Helen Wright. Miss Davenport, one of the strongest emotional dramatic stars with Universal, scores another distinct triumph for herself in this stirring and touching heart-interest drama. She pervades every scene of the entire two reels with her personality, and makes of it a living, throbbing drama that must appeal to every one.

Beautiful Cleo Madison is the leading star in a superb single-reel dramatic masterpiece, "Virginia," co-starring with Margaret Whistler, William Mong and Ray Hanford. Her work in this feature is distinctly and strongly emotional and will appeal to everyone.

A great L-Ko scream is also on the bill today, "Buddy Brigg's Burglar," starring Reggie Morriss and Gertrude Selby. Watch for these L-Ko's They're absolutely the most original and laughable comedies on the market today, and there is going to be an L-Ko day every Saturday from now on.

Mandamus to Stop Certification of Supreme Court Opinion Out of Order.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., June 9.—For the first time in the history of North Carolina court practice, a mandamus issues against the clerk of the Supreme Court to stop him from certifying to the court below the ruling and opinion of the court in a case before the regular time under the rule of practice, which would be the first Monday of the month for all cases decided ten days prior thereto. The mandamus is in Tilghman vs. Seaboard Air Line, which has been to the State Supreme Court three times and also to the United States Supreme Court.

The State Supreme Court granted another new trial May 31. Counsel for Tilghman were moving to have the case certified to the court below out of order as of the first Monday in June to secure trial at once before Judge George Connor. Counsel for the Seaboard want no trial at this time, preferring to wait for the next term, which will be held by Judge Bond. Therefore, Seaboard counsel, Murray Allen, went before Judge Bond at Edenton and procured the mandamus which is returnable June 17.

Where Shall I Spend My Vacation?

This, the Question of the Hour, Is a Very Difficult One To Answer

NOW is the accepted time to begin getting catalogues together in order to decide where to spend the summer vacation. Never was decision more difficult to make. Never were catalogues so fascinating, so picturesque, so lavish of adjectives.

"Seahurst-in-the-Pines," reads the catalogue. "Most beautiful of summer places. Cool and sparkling water, French cuisine, boating, golf links, tennis, riding, charming walks. No mosquitoes."

"Seahurst is the very place for me," you cry after reading this fetching description. But alas, no sooner have you so decided than your hand falls on another catalogue and, picking it up idly, these sentences attract your eye: "Come to Skytop. Air like wine, mean temperature 82; wonderful views and romantic scenery. Dancing, bowling, trout fishing, and all other amusements. NO MOSQUITOES."

Naturally now you are torn 'twixt these two fascinating places. One, upon contemplation, seems quite as good as the other; quite as delightful; quite as appealing. There is not a pin to choose between them. You are just about to toss a penny to see which it shall be when in comes Marie. Marie has a tale to tell of an old farm-house hidden away in New England on the edge of a bay, where you can go and stop for next to nothing. The old farm-house, it seems, is entirely surrounded by orchards, the trees in which bear the most luscious fruit. This you simply go out and pluck and eat without saying aught to anyone. Also the price asked for board is a mere bagatelle, the place being kept by philanthropists who take paying guests merely to help the guests, and who feed them on fried chicken and snowy biscuits at practically nothing a week. And there are no mosquitoes.

"Amusements," says Marie, "why the place is simply full of amusements. You can slide down the haycocks, and go for the mail, and watch them thresh the wheat. It is the most delightful place to stay in the world."

You are mentally just completing your arrangements to go to the old New England farm-house when Edith enters.

"I have such a nice place all picked out for you to spend the summer," she cries. "It's a settlement of artists and actors, and it's on the Atlantic Coast where the bathing is wonderful. My dear, the most marvellous people go there, men in velvet coats and with Vandyke beards and women dressed in togas and sandals who smoke cigarettes. It is so interesting. And you can get board at a nominal figure, purely nominal. There's something doing every minute. This year, for instance, there is to be a school there to teach girls to express their souls in dances. They flit in and out through the trees in their bare feet, wearing classic draperies of cheese-cloth, and they look exactly like dryads, or—or what's the name of those things which live in the woods. No, not rabbits! Well, at any rate, they tell me that on one side of you you will frequently find an actor reciting Hamlet's soliloquy—getting ready for the next season, you know—and on another an artist painting a landscape, and on still another a dancing sprite, and that altogether, it is an absorbing place. Did I mention that there are no mosquitoes there?"

You are considering entering this artistic paradise when Hortense brings you word of a new retreat. "You cannot go to my place unless you are invited?" she explains.

"Don't you have to pay?" you ask excitedly.

"Dear me, yes. From $18 to $40 a day, but that is the whole cost," answers Hortense.

You mutter that it is a quite sufficient cost.

"But you do not understand," explains your friend kindly. "After you have been invited to become a paying guest you go and pay whatever your room costs. After that there is no further expense. There are no extras. If you wish champagne for every meal you can have it for the asking. You do not have to stamp your own letters; you are not allowed to tip the servants; there is an automobile at your command when you wish it, and a guide, and a library—and—and everything that heart can wish. There is wonderful trout fishing, and there are the Catskills right to hand and the blue of the Adirondacks in the distance. Altogether, it is a perfect place."

"But forty dollars a day," you protest.

"There is no other cost," answers Hortense, "and there is not a mosquito in the place."

It leaves you dreadfully up in the air. If you had heard of any one of these you would have been satisfied with it, but the number of ideal vacation places leaves you helpless. You no sooner think longingly of the open fires of Skytop than a vision of barefoot dryads unsettles you again. Or you long for the old farm-house when the suggestion of champagne for breakfast without extra charge, causes you to hesitate.

If you continue to change your mind you have an awful presentment that you will stay at home, where there are mosquitoes and where nary a dryad prances.

COLORED FLOWER BOWLS IN VOGUE.

THE wide and shallow bowls which are used on the dining table to hold flowers, grow in popularity, but where once the majority of them were of clear glass, now many come in soft colors. A very pretty one seen recently was of thick pottery of a delicate blue shade and had a gracefully curled edge. Another was of a pale yellow tint the exact shade of daffodils; still another was of a clear and very attractive shade of red. This last while pretty enough in itself could hardly be recommended as useful, for there are few flowers which would harmonize with its rich dark shade.

Hostesses who use these colored bowls frequently use with them candles that match them in tint, and use no shades at all on the candles.

The Garden Doctor's Work New

She Not Only Makes Sick Plants Well But Keeps Well Ones Healthy

HAVE you ever met a garden doctor? No! Well there is such a thing and it—or she—is a woman. This physician to plants has an office in Philadelphia, and to it come persons who have sick delphiniums, or anaemic phlox, or peonies that will not bloom, and beg for advice.

The garden doctor, like other physicians, will not prescribe without seeing her patient. So when her good offices are urged she picks up her little black bag—at least we will assume that she carries a black bag—and off she goes with the messenger.

If the invalid is a delphinium, say, she looks it over carefully, asks questions about its diet, quite in the approved fashion; examines a leaf instead of a tongue; digs about it a bit for the grubs that she suspects is feeding at its root, and before she goes away has found out the trouble and prescribed the proper remedy.

Perhaps one visit will not suffice to effect a cure, in which case she goes to visit the patient until she is satisfied that that drooping delphinium will soon be restored to perfect health.

The garden doctor learned her profession at a school of horticulture, and she is so expert, it is said, that she can take a lawn all dotted over with sorrel grass and burdock and dandelion, and make of it a velvet sward in a comparatively short time.

But she does more than treat flowers that are ill; she guarantees to keep well ones in perfect health, and to make them bloom their brightest and best; and better than all, she will act as chaperon or nursemaid to gardens the owners of which have gone away for a visit and left their blossoming treasures to the indifferent care of a more or less casual gardener.

The garden doctor is a new personage in our midst, but if the gardening rage continues—and surely it will, for who who has once known the pleasure of growing things is ever willing to abandon it—she will become a most prosperous citizen. As a matter of fact she fills a long-felt want, for the average garden book tells little about the diseases which affect plants, and the average catalogue tells nothing at all. It is for this reason that the average amateur gardener is perfectly at sea when a hitherto healthy plant turns yellow and begins to fade.

Up to this time she has had to see her treasure die before her eyes; now she can send for the garden doctor and find out exactly what treatment shall be meted out to the invalid.

So may the garden doctor flourish as the green bay tree. No one will grudge her her prosperity.

THE YOUNG HOUSEKEEPER SAYS

THAT while plum season has not yet arrived, she is going to give the following recipe while she thinks of it. She came upon the sweetmeats made by this rule, she explains, on the tea-table of a friend, last winter, and was so entranced by them that she begged to know how they were made. In response to her entreaties she was given the formula which she herewith passes on.

Conserves: One quart of plums, chopped; two and one-half pounds of sugar, a half pound of walnut meats, one pound of seeded raisins, one cup of water; two oranges, grate peel and chop fine. Pour the water on the plums and boil ten minutes Then remove the stones, add all of the other ingredients except the nuts and cook three-quarters of an hour. Add the nut meats, put into jars and seal. It is well to put the raisins, oranges and plums through the meat grinder.

Fresh peas are now in the market, coming in many places from home gardens, and if there is anything more delightful than this vegetable when freshly picked from the vines, then, the Young Housekeeper says, she does not know what it is. In France peas and carrots form a favorite combination, and one delicious enough to be recommended to Americans: Wash, scrape and cut one quart of young carrots into very small dice; put in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and boil fifteen minutes. Add two cups of fresh peas and boil twenty or twenty-five minutes. Mix some butter and flour together until smooth and add to the peas and carrots. Add salt, pepper, and a tablespoonful of finely cut chives, young onion tops or parsley and boil five minutes.

Another way of cooking peas much esteemed by the French, and by those Americans who have been fortunate enough to taste them, is the following: Place enough peas for eight persons in a double boiler, add two tablespoonfuls of butter, six leaves of lettuce, and three tiny onions as big as the top of one's finger. Keep the water boiling under them for three hours, when they are ready to serve. The butter and lettuce add to the juice, and the baby onion gives such a soupcon of flavor that one scarcely knows it to be onion.

A pea porridge makes a nice soup for luncheon, and a very nutritious one which may be made to take the place of meat. Put two cups of shelled peas on in four cups of boiling water, and boil thirty minutes or until tender. If the water boils away add more for there should be, when the peas are tender, four cups of peas and water. Add then two cups of boiling milk and two tablespoons of flour and one of butter rubbed together. Boil three minutes, then add salt, pepper and parsley. Serve with croutons.

In certain households, the Young Housekeeper says, there is an idea that the only way to cook cabbage is with some sort of fat meat. She says that this is a mistake and that a dainty and delicious dish may be made of new cabbage by cooking as follows: Cut the cabbage in quarters, removing part of core, and lay in cold water thirty minutes. Then drain, cover with boiling water and boil thirty minutes or until tender, uncovered. Drain, put it in a deep dish and cover with a cream sauce. Grate a hard-boiled egg over the top and send to the table. Cabbage must not be boiled in salted water.

Little Fables of the Business World

THE WORM TURNED.

THERE was once a certain Young Man who was Strong for this "Let-me-do-it!" Stuff. Not that he was Exactly Fond of Throwing Money Away careless-like, nor that he had Wads of it to Throw. But he simply couldn't help offering to Pay for the Whole Bunch.

Say, f'rinstance, he was Pouring a Lonely Libation on the Altar of Friendship and several of his Friends entered for a Similar Purpose. Straightway Our Hero would feel Called Upon to act as Mine Host. Or, again, suppose he was Strolling Along with a Friend or Two and wanted to Stop in a Cigar Store for a Pack of Coffin-Nails. Could he do so without feeling that it was Up to him to invite Said Friends to have Cigars? He could not!

Later, he would often Count the Pennies Left and Bemoan the fact that it was Costing him Some Coin for just plain Foolishness. But he didn't see how he could Help it. Surely, he wasn't willing to be Set Down as a Tightwad, or a Sponger! And, somehow, a Chap with Ready Money always in his Extended Palm is kind of Popular with the Boys!

Well, after a while, a nice young Damsel picked him out and Led him to the Altar. He knew he had Won a Peach but he was not Aware that he'd also Married an Automatic Savings Bank. This Fair Bride of his was Long on the Old Stuff anent Watching the Pennies and letting the Dollars take care of themselves.

She began by Handing him So-Much-and-no-More each morning for Current Expenses—Twenty Centimes for Lunch, Ten more for Carfare and Another Ten for Smokes. Being just wed and therefore New at the Game he Fell for it. Wifey was Delighted and called him a Dear Boy.

Bing! First crack out of the Box he had a Shock. Right at the corner where he Took his Car he ran into a Pal. As they Climbed aboard the Pay-As-You-Enter said Pal was Negligently Careful to let Our Hero go first—since it meant giving the Pass-Word to the Conductor.

O. H. reached into his Pocket casual-like for Two Nickels, but suddenly Realized that if he Came Across with them he'd have to Walk Home! He did a Lot of Quick Thinking. Also, he Swallowed his Pride. Also, his Hand came forth from his pocket holding but One Nickel.

The Pal was just about to say, "Here, I got a dime—oh, all right, then," as per stereotyped form, when he Got a Squint at the Lone Nickel. He all but Fell off the Platform!

O. H. turned the Color of Six Rainbows and a Black Eye nicely Blended. He tried to Cough but couldn't. He even thought of Fainting. But he finally managed to Mumble something that sounded like "Let's each pay his own carfare—what's the use of—"

Said Pal thought he Saw his Chance for the Come-Back Stuff good and plenty. So he handed out, "Here, let me pay—put your Nickel back in your Pocket!" And he threw in just the Right Amount of Sarcasm and Contempt.

He Got a Squint at the Lone Nickel.

But O. H. wasn't Asleep. He knew he couldn't let that kind of Guff Get By. "Not on your life!" he exclaimed, bucking up, "You pay yours and I'll pay mine! We've known each other too long, Bill, to put on any Airs. Let's be Sensible about it!"

Bill grinned, a Sickly One, and then Laughed, "Righto!" he yawned "That's the Right Dope—and I don't see why everybody doesn't look at it that way. This darn Treating Business is all Bunk, anyway! But somehow I ain't Got the Nerve to Suggest it."

"Me neither!" Our Hero confessed. "Leastwise, I wouldn't of two weeks ago—"

Moral:—In some ways Matrimony is Sometimes a Help!

PAINTED HAT IS SMART.

THE painted hat is with us again this summer. Broad-brimmed it is, and usually of rough straw, and its sole decoration consists of a wreath of flowers painted around the crown. Yet it is as charming as any French model that e'er was seen.

In the shops it sells for an extravagant price, but buy your own shape and get a friend to paint it and lo, you have a lovely chapeau to wear to garden parties for next to nothing.

When Hubby Helped To Move

WILL you really come home early this afternoon and help?" asked Mrs. Blinkins. There was doubt, weariness, surprise and, withal, a despairing note of yet hoping against hope in her voice.

"Sure—sure I will; and I'll make things fly, I tell you!" answered Mr. Blinkins. "Now you just go ahead and do the little odds and ends, my dear, and leave all the heavy stuff to me. And don't worry! Why, what's a little moving, anyway? There—there, dear—I must hurry now."

So, with a hasty matutinal peck of farewell, Blinkins hurried for his car.

The Blinkins were moving. That is to say they were moving part of their furniture to a bungalow they had found in an attractive suburb, and were leaving what they didn't want for a Mr. and Mrs. Smithers, who had rented the house from them "furnished" for the summer. The Smithers, it should be noted, had been living in a two-by-four apartment; so the Blinkins' house looked truly grand to them, no matter how furnished.

And for several days, now, Mrs. Blinkins had been "packing" and "house-cleaning;" which is the same as saying that she had been trying to ascertain the very least with which the Smithers could be supposed to get along and then either storing the remainder in an upstairs closet (to be locked and she to keep the key) or packing it for transportation to the bungalow. She was exhausted too.

"Oh, Robert," she had exclaimed, just after the Smithers had definitely accepted the house, "I don't know how I'll ever get through it."

"Shucks!" he had replied. "Why it won't be anything at all! It isn't like we were moving, or putting our things in storage until Fall. Why, my dear, all we've got to do is to pitch our personal things into trunks, put your best china and table linen into that closet on the third floor, pay the gas bill and get the 'phone disconnected and—there we are!"

Mrs. Blinkins had smiled wanly. "That's a man's idea of it!" she had exclaimed. "You don't seem to realize that this house must be cleaned from top to bottom. What? Let Mrs. Smithers think I'm a careless housekeeper—well, I just guess not! Indeed no! When she walks in here she must not find so much as one speck of dust!"

And so Mrs. Blinkins, with the assistance of Jane, their maid of all work, and Thomas, who cared for the furnace in winter as a side-line to his janitoring of a big apartment house across the street, had gone after the dust and the dirt and the packing.

That afternoon Blinkins was home by half-past four. He found Mrs. Blinkins stretched out upon the divan in the living room; she had a wretched headache but was merely resting a while, she said.

"Well," he laughed, "here I am! And I find you taking it easy! Concluded to wait until I came home before beginning, eh?"

Mrs. Blinkins sat up. Had anything more deadly than a pillow been handy she would have hurled it at him. "Robert Blinkins," she said, "I've been going every minute since you left this morning. I'm so dog-tired I could just pass right away."

Blinkins looked around and peered into the dining room. "Humh!" he remarked, "I must confess I don't see where you've done much."

Mrs. Blinkins began to cry.

Mr. Blinkins began to explain and apologize and soothe.

Whereupon Mrs. Blinkins led him upstairs to show him how thoroughly she had cleaned three closets on the second floor and stored some of their contents in the third-floor closet; also, how the library and second-floor-front bedroom had been swept, dusted and made ready for the Smithers. "If I've walked up to the third floor once today, Robert," she protested, "I know I've done it a thousand times!"

"Well, well," her husband remarked; and then added in what he meant to be an encouraging way, "The exercise'll do you good, my dear. Say, what's become of the rugs?"

"Oh, you've noticed they are up, have you?" said Mrs. Blinkins frigidly. "And I suppose you'll say I didn't have to do a thing with them but let the men from the cleaner's come and take them away to clean and store until Fall? Well just let me tell you, Robert Blinkins, that I had to watch them take up each and every rug—they'd have upset every piece of furniture in the room and no doubt carried some of it away with them, if I hadn't! I want you to put down some of our fibre rugs tonight," she added.

Mr. Blinkins sank down into a chair. "I think I'll smoke a cigarette, my dear, and then I'll be ready to tackle whatever you want me to—I won't keep you waiting but a few minutes."

"Oh, that's all right, Robert. I thought we'd have dinner first and then begin in earnest—and we'll have to go out for dinner because Jane is so busy cleaning things in the kitchen and assorting and packing what we are going to take with us and what we leave behind that—"

"Go out to dinner! Well I'll be—jiggered!" Mr. Blinkins angrily knocked the ash from his cigarette. "Say, Maud, what's the idea of having me break my neck rushing home to help you pack and then—then telling me I needn't do a darn thing until we've gone out for our dinner.

Mrs. Blinkins explained. Of course, if he insisted, he could begin right away to take down the curtains; but she had thought he'd prefer not to get himself all dusty and hot and then have to dress again to go to dinner, etc.

Mrs. Blinkins paused in her packing, vase suspended in mid-air.

Blinkins breathed a sigh of relief, and opened the evening paper. "Just as you say, my dear, just as you say.

"You get ready now and we'll go for dinner."

"I couldn't go, not even to save my life, Robert," Mrs. Blinkins wailed. "I shall fix a little tea and crackers—and there's some cold chicken from yesterday. But I want you to go to the cafe in the apartment house at the corner and have a real good dinner."

Blinkins bounded to his feet. "Well, of all the darnphool things I ever heard of!" he cried. "Why didn't you let me get my dinner downtown at the club. Here I rushed home—and haven't done a thing since I've been here—and now you want me to eat at that bum old cafe—and you're going to nibble a few crackers and—and—gee whiz! why don't you have some kind of a system!"

An hour and a half later the Blinkins were at it—she packing china ornaments in the living room, and he taking down and folding curtains and then carrying them and goodness knows how many other things up to the store-room closet on the third floor.

Blinkins had just grabbed an armful to tote upstairs—it was his eleventh trip, though it seemed like the thousandth—when Mrs. Blinkins paused in her packing, vase suspended in mid-air, to remark:

"Robert, dear, will you bring me down that old bathrobe in the closet in the third-floor back room; and bring up another box of excelsior from the cellar; and don't forget that old suitcase I left in the hall for you to take up to the—"

Mr. Blinkins hurled his armful of curtains to the floor, and ran his hands through his hair. Wherever they touched his forehead, it might be noted in passing, they left a mark, for his hands were dusty and his brow wet.

"Confounditall!" he cried. "Why don't you let me alone for a minute! You tell me to do one thing—and then almost before I've begun it you mention a dozen more!" And he kicked the curtains out of his way as he paced up and down.

"Oh—Robert—!"

"I went down in the cellar not two minutes ago—why didn't you ask me to bring up that excelsior then? And I've come down from upstairs a dozen times, on any one of which I could have brought that bathrobe. I dare say there are a million things up there that have to come down; and I suppose I've got to make a million separate and distinct trips for them instead of making my head save my heels and—"

"I'm vastly more interested in getting this awful business over with than in making my head save my heels!" Mrs. Blinkins declared with asperity. "Now I suppose you are satisfied! You've made an occasion to get mad and—and—go on—never mind—you needn't do a thing more—!"

"Burr-rr-rr!" growled Mr. Blinkins, stuffing the curtains under his arm and starting for the third floor.

SEASONABLE JOTTINGS

THE most amazing fashion item of the day has to do with the new lingerie, the awful new lingerie.

Time was when no lady would wear anything but white next her skin. Now no really fashionable lady wears white.

Some of the new lingerie is made of green chiffon embroidered in parrots of brilliant hues. And some of it is of black lace emblazoned with rhinestones and gold thread.

My, but it must be scratchy.

There are yellow nightgowns and chemises and knickerbockers to be had, and pink ones and flame-colored ones, and the influences of Baskt is said to be traced in all of this, but is it not enough for him to influence our outer clothes without interfering with lingerie.

Even a modest little nightgown is priced thirty dollars now, and the filmier the more expensive.

There are a few nainsook articles still to be had, however, luckily enough, and these come from the Philippines and are exquisitely embroidered by the Filipino women.

Report of Better Export Demand—Market Has Steadier Tone—Previous Losses Partly Recovered.

New York, June 9.—Reports of a better export demand and renewed Liverpool buying to undo old straddle accounts, gave the cotton market a steadier tone today and prices recovered part of yesterday's losses. The weekly figures showed a further sharp falling off in stocks of American cotton at both Manchester and Liverpool and it was reported that ocean freight room was being freely booked at the present rate of 1.75 per 100.

STOCKS ARE LIFTED HIGHER

Political Conditions Further Disregarded—Pronounced Strength.

Rails Lend Support With

New York, June 9.—In further disregard of political conditions which lost none of their uncertainties and complexities during the session today's market was lifte dto irregularly high levels. There were a few offsetting features but these were due in the main to technical or specific reasons.

Rails, however, gave the list much support, the potential issues of that group manifesting pronounced strength on what was regarded as further accumulation.

Low priced rails, including shares of companies now in proces of financial readjustment, were materially higher.

United States Steel stood out among the old-time favorites, its advance of 1 1-2 to 86 1-4 being accompanied by heavy trading, but Bethlehem Steel, on a single sale fell 11 points to 445. Two new records were established, American Beet Sugar advancing a point to 84 1-8 with 1 1-2 for United States Smelting at 80 3-4. Total sales of stocks amounted to 545,000 shares.

Bonds were firm in general, but international issues were inclined to ease, several large lots of Anglo-French 5's being offered at a concession from yesterday's final quotation. Total sales of bonds (par value) were $3,940,000. Panama coupon 3's declined 1-4c on call.

WEEK'S REVIEW OF COTTON

Market Less Active But Somewhat Firmer—Ocean Rates Lower.

New York, June 9.—The cotton market has been less active during the past week. The recent break to 12 1-2 cents for July contracts appeared to have placed the market in a somewhat firmer technical position and fluctuations since then have been irregular with October contracts ruling between 12.62 and 13.06.

One of the chief features of the trading has been the active buying here by houses with Liverpool connections to undo straddles. The easier ruling of the ocean freight situation is believed to have promoted this covering by straddle short interests. Stocks of American cotton in both Manchester and Liverpool showed a sharp falling off this week and with ocean freight rates lower, there have already been indications of increased activity by foreign buyers. Domestic spinners are reported to be coming off for a nearer view of the new crop while speculative support has been discouraged by the dwindling hope of an early peace and the favorable view of immediate weather and crop conditions.

Today's appearance of clearing weather with rising temperatures strengthening expectation of a favorable July bureau report.

According to the final figures of the Department of Agriculture the acreage planted last year amounted to 32,107,000 acres and the average yield of lint cotton per acre has been about 185 pounds and local traders are still talking an increase of 8 to 10 per cent in acreage this season.

DUN'S BUSINESS SUMMARY

Output in Industries Still Surpassing. Buying Rush Abated.

New York, June 9.—Dun's Review tomorrow will say:

"Leading industries still surpass in actual output the work of any previous year and in most cases capacity operations are assured for months to come, labor conditions permitting. On strictly domestic business, however, the rush to buy has clearly abated and there are more definite and convincing signs of a turn in the price situation.

"While in some lines the crest apparently has not yet been attained and premiems continue ineffective in others yielding tendencies are noted and in certain instances pressure to sell is less conspicuous by its absence. Recessions have occurred mainly in raw materials but also in a few manufactured products and there are reports of concessions made as a stimulus to retail distribution which has again been retarted by unsettled weather.

"Since the point has been reached at which the high costs are checking consumptive demands, the evidences of a halting in the advances and of a trend toward reaction cannot be regarded as other than wholesome in their bearing on the future.

"Weekly bank clearings, $4,592,486,505."

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

Steady Tone Maintained—Market Close at a Net Advance.

New Orleans, June 9.—A steady tone was maintained in the cotton market today in t heface of reports of the marketing of the first bale of the new crop, continued good weather and crop news from practically all sections and the forecast of fair weather. Late in the day the market stood 8 to 10 points over yesterday's final quotations. The close was at a net rise of 7 to 9 points.

English prices were higher than due and the trading months rose 4 to 5 points.

Liverpool was a heavy buyer and reports of an increased spot demand were also sustaining influence. Some bearish comment was excited by reports of first blooms at points in Mississippi but the market attained no real selling power. Closing bid: July 12.64; October 12.72; December 13.35; January 12.95; March 13.10. Spot steady, unchanged. Sales on spot 6,900 to arrive 800; middling 12.63.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

New York, June 9.—Wide print cloths were easier on small sales today. On sheetings and other goods the market held steady. Colored goods were firm. Wool market were strong. Knit goods were bought in a large way for spring.

COLUMBUS VETERANS MEET

Held Annual Reunion at Whiteville Addressed by H. E. Stacy, Esq. —Dinner.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Whiteville, N. C., June 9.—The James H. Metts Camp Confederate Veterans, of Columbus county, met in their annual reunion here today, and the Jefferson Davis Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, entertained 55 of the veterans at a splendid dinner. H. E. Stacy, Esq., delivered the address at noon in the large and handsome auditorium in the new court house. He was introduced by Col. D. J. Lewis, of the local bar, who paid the speaker nice compliments.

The exercises opened with prayer by Rev. C. W. Smith and the choir sang appropriate selections, which were loudly applauded by the soldiers and sons of soldiers. Crosses of honor were also given many of the soldiers by the Daughters. Mr. Stacy caught the crowd in the beginning of his speech and held it to the close. He was eloquent at all times, and said many things that will long be remembered by all who heard him. The old soldier's eyes filled with tears as Mr. Stacy recounted their daring and dashing deeds. He told of the time that tried men's souls, of the great privations of the soldiers of the South, of their bravery upon every battlefield to Appomattox and finally of their return home at the close of the war to find their fields laid waste, their homes gone down, and the entrance of the carpet baggers, and scallowags who took charge of governmental affairs in the land. Historical facts were given by the speaker and he told them not to be dismayed. He pointed out the great future of the South, which will blossom as the rose. The best part of the address was the magnificent tribute paid to the women of the Confederacy.

He declared that they fought their battles, too. They fought them bravely and did their full share in bringing the South back into its own. Time and again the speaker was applauded, and at one time the veterans could refrain no longer and they yelled as they might have on some bullet scarred battlefield. Many from the country were present at the reunion and the city was delightfully spent. Flowers adorned the auditorium and the songs inspired the soldiers. "Tenting Tonight" was sung by the choir, and this touched the hearts of all present.

After the speaking the camp was given first place at the long tables in the Lewis building. They had everything that a soldier might wish for. The Daughters covered themselves with glory on this occasion again. After dinner they met once more for a business meeting and to elect officers for the year.

The following are the officers: Commandant, Major A. F. Powell, Adjt. E. T. Usher, First Lieut. Charles Lennon, Second Lieut. H. C. Moffet, Third Lieut. J. R. Williamson; treasurer, J. R. Best; surgeon, Dr. R. C. Sadler; chaplain, W. H. Ward; first sergeant, J. W. Powell. Delegates were elected to the annual State reunion at Wilmington in July. Many arose when volunteers were called for by Major Powell to attend the next National Reunion in Washington next year. It was a great day indeed for the Veterans and their friends. They passed fitting resolutions to the Daughters of the Confederacy, the clever people of Whiteville and all others who helped to make the day such a grand success. There are about 150 veterans in Columbus, but many of them are too feeble to attend their reunions now.

up with the good and left no place for the bad. In the meeting of the men at the banquet he felt that they were simply carrying forward what had already been started. He thought it was a great demonstration that would bring good results. He spoke of the practical lessons to be deducted.

Rev. John Jeter Hurt, of Durham, who is to assume the pastorate of the First Baptist church in July, who attended the banquet, was given a very cordial greeting when he was called on to speak. It was worth a trip half across the continent, he declared, to be able to attend such a gathering. There were three words that he wanted to call attention to, he stated, these being intensiveness, co-operativeness and progressiveness. He made an eloquent plea that all would be alive to the patriotism of service and would give themselves wholly to Christian service.

Rev. R. L. Davis, of Raleigh, secretary of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League, who was a guest of honor, spoke of his deep gratification in being able to attend such a gathering. He was glad that all the churches have agreed that liquor is of the devil's work and he asked that all present would give some little time to helping in his work.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY EPWORTH CONFERENCE

Durham. The speaker made a lasting impression upon his audience.

Reports from Washington, Wilmington and Elizabeth City were read and these showed that great progress is being made by the leagues at those places.

This afternoon the visitors were given an auto ride over the city and this proved thoroughly enjoyable. Dr. F. S. Parker, of Nashville, Tenn., was to have delivered the address tonight, but was unable to attend and Rev. F. S. Love, of Aberdeen, made an interesting talk on the mission work being done in Brazil. Two interesting sessions will be held tomorrow and the convention will come to a close Sunday night.

Berlin, via London, June 9.—The following official communication was issued today:

"This morning off the Flanders coast there was an artillery fight between German outpost boats and enemy monitors and destroyers at long range. Several of our salvos were observed to have had good effect. The enemy then withdrew in the direction of Dunkirk. The German forces were not damaged."

"During the afternoon a French battle airboat was shot down by one of our seaplanes. The occupants were captured by one of our submarines."

REVIVALIST TELLS HOW ONE MAY WIN HIS SALVATION

Rev. R. L. Topping Addresses Large Audience at Dock Street Church.

The revival services being conducted at the Dock Street Christian church by Rev. Raleigh L. Topping, of Rosemary, with the assistance of Rev. J. E. Reynolds, pastor of the local church, continues to be large attended. Last night, Mr. Topping spoke on the subject of "What We Must do to be Saved." He said in part:

"It is my purpose to give the gospel plan of salvation and to make it plain and simple—to tell the unsaved how they may gain salvation. There are a number of evangelists who hold revival services and never tell the unsaved how to win salvation.

"There are four steps in the gospel plan of salvation. The first is faith, and without it we are unable to please God. Faith alone will not save a man; it takes both faith and works. If we have nothing but faith, we are classed with the devils in hell, for they believe—and tremble.

"The second step is repentance, and of all the powers of a minister of the God's Word that I would like to possess, the power to cause people to truly repent is one I covet most.

"The third step is confession, and Jesus says that those who are ashamed to confess Him before men, he will be ashamed to confess before the Father.

"The fourth step is baptism, and it is the devil's bugaboo. Many people do not agree on this subject, but all people recognize immersion as baptism, and whenever the religious world unites on the subject, I believe it will be on immersion."

There will be no service at the church tonight, but tomorrow morning and night, the subject of the sermon will be "Baptism."

HELPFUL MEETING OF LAYMEN HELD AT WARSAW

Methodist Leaders of Wilmington District Discuss Church Problems.

The third of a series of group meetings for the Methodist laymen of the Wilmington district was held Thursday at Warsaw. The churches at Burgaw, Wallace, Rose Hill, Magnolia, Kenansville and Clinton were represented by their pastors and by leading laymen. Those attending from Wilmington were Rev. M. T. Plyler, Rev. J. H. Shore and Rev. W. V. McRae. Especially large delegations were present from Kenansville, Magnolia and Clinton charges.

The immediate objective of this the other group meeting which are being held in the district was discussed and steps taken towards its realization entered upon, this being to arouse the men of the church to greater activity and interest.

This group comprised five charges and was by far the most enthusiastic that has yet been held. Something of the interest of those present was indicated by the fact that some half dozen young men of the Magnolia church walked from eight to 12 miles to reach the meeting. Mr. Fred G. Rose, the lay leader, and the ministers interested are much gratified at the success of the meetings.

Only one other group meeting remains to be held, this being at Whiteville on next Thursday. Five charges are to be represented, these being Hallsboro, Carver's Creek, Whiteville, Chadbourn and Tabor. Mr. F. G. Rose and several Wilmington ministers are expecting to atend. Last week a group meeting was held at Jacksonville.

David's

You might wear the finest looking Hart Schaffner & Marx suit in the world, but it couldn't look very well without a linen collar that fits, and a good shirt, and a nice four-in-hand tie.

All of these things that go with the suit are here.

Besides the above, there's a nice selection of straw hats, canes; the exactly right things.

You will notice that our salesmen in the furnishing goods have some very definite ideas about collars, ties, shirts—they know the business; they have made a study of it. Talk with them—ask them to show you the goods and prices.
